EMPIRE'S NEW MILL READY TO START MONDAY

$250,000 Installation Finished, Will Operate Next Week, President Hill Says.

FOR SHEET PRODUCTION

Annual Report Shows Increase In Sales During 1937, In Spite of Slump.

The new mechanized units in the sheet producing plants of the Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company, installed at a cost of $250,000, will go into production for the first time Monday, President James M. Hill announced at the annual meeting of company stockholders yesterday.

Completion of the new units, according to Hill, will place the company in a better position to meet the demands of a competitive market, broaden facilities for the manufacture of flat rolled products, such as porcelain enameling and lacquer finishes which the company has been making, and which are used in the manufacture of ranges, refrigerators, cabinet stokers, air-conditioning equipment and automobiles, and special sheets used in the fabrication of electrical equipment, which the company started to make the first of the year.

Work on the new units was started last December.

Submits Annual Report.

Hill explained the installation in detail at yesterday's meeting, and submitted the company's annual report as well.

The company's net sales during 1937 were $8,213,191, the report showed as compared with $6,896,073 for 1936. Average prices for 1937 were higher than in 1936 the report said, and the operating rate over the 12-month period was 71.3 per cent, although the sharp decline in industrial activity date in the year cut the operating rate in the fourth quarter to 32 per cent. Production during the first two months of this year was 27 per cent, which is in line with the average for the industry, Hill said.

Earnings Up.

The company showed earnings of $243,415, before bond interest and depreciation during 1937, as compared with a deficit of $151,420 during the preceding year.

The report added, however, that "substantially higher costs of labor, raw materials and taxes have greatly increased costs."

No election of directors took place yesterday, nor was there a meeting of directors, Hill said. Both officers and directors of the company were elected last year for three-year terms.

Horrors! Milady's Feet Larger? Yes, And Here's Why

ST. LOUIS—(AP)—Milady might be offended if she were told her feet are getting larger.

But putting it mildly:

The average size of women's shoes has increased by a size to a size and a half during the last ten years.

Authority for this statement is Harry Ostermeier, stylist of a large St. Louis shoe manufacturer (Brown).

"This is because modern women were better fitted when they were children," Ostermeier explained. "As a result, their feet have developed more naturally and are better formed than their mothers and grandmothers. This fact accounts to a great extent for the increase in the average size of their shoes."

Ten years ago the average size in women's shoes ran from 5 to 6, he pointed out, while today the greatest number of sales come in sizes 6 to 7 and a half.

Heavy Rains Bring State Flood Threat

Streams and Mercury Rise But Wet Spell's Over, Weatherman Says.

After an absence of more than a week, the sun made brief return appearances in Mansfield today following several days of rain that brought threats of floods in several sections of the state.

In southern Ohio, the flood menace grew as the result of torrential rains that sent rivers and streams near the top of their banks.

The danger of a flood of major proportions similar to the one in January, 1937, was minimized, however, by John C. Fisher, state meteorologist.

Fisher predicted most streams would begin receding within the next 48 hours.

Lightning, Thunder—Spring!

The steady rains which were climaxed with thundershowers and lightning in Mansfield last night and early today, had a definite affect on the temperature. The mercury hovered at 60 degrees at noon today, 10 degrees above yesterday.

For the last 24 hours the average was 45.5 degrees, 11 degrees above normal for this date. Approximately a half inch of rain fell in the 24-hour period.

The forecast for tonight and tomorrow was for fair and colder. The temperature was expected to drop to approximately 45 degrees above zero tonight. Fisher saw the possibility for nothing more than light showers in scattered sections.

The greatest flood danger appeared at Coshocton where the Tuscarawas and Muskingum rivers threatened to pour into lowland areas. Authorities said if the rivers rose to a few fet higher it would be necessary to evacuate approximately 500 persons.

Lowland areas around Dayton were inundated and the Wayne township school in Montgomery county was ordered closed when school buses were unable to traverse the flooded highways.

Highways at Piketon, Waverly, Circleville and Upper Sandusky were reported under water varying in depth from four to eight inches.

While the Walhonding river was reported "bank full" for a 14 mile stretch from Coshocton to the Mohawk dam, engineers in the Muskingum conservancy district saw no possibility of heavy damage.

The Ohio river at Cincinnati was reported at 35.1 feet today. A crest of 50 feet was expected late in the week. Flood stage is 52 feet.

GUILTY AGAIN

$109,000 Yacht Club Theft Admitted by Whitney.

NEW YORK —(U.P.)— Richard Whitney, former president of the New York Stock Exchange, pleaded guilty today to a second indictment, this one charging that he stole $109,000 in bonds from the New York Yacht club, of which he was treasurer.

Whitney, who pleaded guilty Monday to larceny of a $100,000 family trust fund, will be sentenced on both charges March 28.

He faces a possible maximum sentence of 10 to 20 years in prison unless the two separate grand larceny indictments are consolidated.

Czechs Dig In, Take Firm Stand Against Nazis

Will Czechoslovakia be "the Belgium of the second World war?" That is the question being asked in Europe where it is believed that Hitler will attempt to incorporate the 3,000,000 Germans in Czechoslovakia into the third German Reich when Nazification of Austria is completed. Meanwhile the Czech government took a determined stand, Premier Milan Hodza denying that German Czechs were being mistreated and declaring that Czechoslovakia would defend itself to the utmost. Outcome of the critical situation depends in great measure on whether Great Britain will actively side with France in supporting Czech independence against Nazi expansion.

RELIEF TURNED OVER QUIETLY

City Takes Up Administration as It Ponders on Bonds to Raise Necessary Funds.

The city of Mansfield quietly assumed the administration of relief today for the first time in about two years as officials pondered over the problem of raising necessary funds to finance the program for the balance of 1938.

The same staff, headed by Relief Director Earl A. Nist, will continue to operate the relief headquarters on Orange street which the county turned over today on orders from the state auditor.

Mayor Claude M. Hunter said that city's only apparent alternative of placing a bond issue before the voters at a special election would be considered by council when it meets in caucus tentatively set for Friday night. A special council session will be called for next Tuesday for action on the problem.

The mayor said that it was still problematical as to what amount would be necessary to finance the relief burden for the balance of the year, but added that a minimum of $50,000 "would probably be necessary."

In a meeting with Relief Director Nist yesterday, city officials prepared a rough draft of an or-

Truck Heads for Store, He Decides It's Time to Move

Windsor Man Leaves Rocker In Front of Window and Escapes Injury After Witnessing Collision.

When a huge truck got out of control and headed toward the window of his general store and residence in Windsor, northeast of Mansfield, yesterday afternoon, Rufus Dickson, proprietor, decided it was time to move from his rocking chair in front of the window.

He went into action and thereby saved himself what he believes could have been serious injuries or death for a moment later, a porch post, dislodged by the truck, crashed through the window and onto the chair where he had been sitting.

The crash, which involved two trucks and tied up traffic on route 42 through the village most of the night, was witnessed by Dickson.

2 Trucks Crash, Overturn.

The two drivers and a passenger in one of the trucks were unhurt when both vehicles turned over in front of the store about 4 p. m. after one truck had crashed into the rear of the other and careened into the porch.

Officers who investigated the accident said a trailer-truck operated by J. O. Jackson of Dallas, Tex., collided with the rear of a milk truck driven by Howard Braden, R. D. 2, Ashland, when Braden stopped for a school bus. Both trucks were headed toward Ashland. Jackson told Corp. Scott B. Radcliffe of the state highway patrol that he was unable to stop the heavy vehicle in time to avoid a collision. J. P. Krouch of Dallas was riding with Jackson.

Wreckage was strewn across route 42 and one-way traffic was maintained by state patrolmen and Sheriff E. P. Long for several hours. The last of the debris was cleared away at 5 a. m. today.

Braden's truck was loaded with empty milk cans and the truck operated by Jackson carried electric motors, tires and automobile accessories en route to Akron.

RAILROAD WINS

B. & O. Gets Permission to Abandon Two Lines.

Despite protests from a number of communities between Mansfield and Sandusky, the state utilities commission today authorized the Baltimore and Ohio railroad to remove two passenger trains operating between Newark and Sandusky, effective April 1.

Abandonment of the service, which the commission said was granted because the trains are being operated at a loss, will leave only one passenger train daily each way on the line through Mansfield. Substitute mail, express and passenger service is available, the commission said.

The trains to be removed are Nos. 47 and 48. The northbound train arrives here at 10.55 a. m. and the southbound at 6.50 p. m.

Left on the passenger schedule will be a southbound train which arrives in Mansfield at 8 a. m. and another northbound at 1:06 a. m. local B. and O. officials said.

West's position in the interior department is considered somewhat uncomfortable in view of his "feud" with his chief, Secretary Harold L. Ickes. Ickes recently cut West's office force to one secretary while West was out of town.

Davey Should Be Indicted, Says Bradley at Perjury Hearing

(By United Press)

CLEVELAND—Lee Bradley, accused by Gov. Martin L. Davey of giving perjured testimony before the recent Ohio senate graft investigating committee, charged today that the governor himself had given false testimony in the present hearing.

Bradley's counsel submitted a 28-page statement in lieu of personal testimony, to refute the governor's accusation. Municipal Judge Burt W. Griffin said he would rule later today on whether Bradley is to be held to the grand jury on the perjury charge.

Gov. Davey was the last witness in the perjury hearing today, completing his third day of testimony. Bradley had told the senate investigators that he solicited campaign contributions for Davey from automobile and utility firms in 1934.

The governor today referred to Bradley as a "confidence man." He also said that the Davey Tree Expert company's first line clearing contract with the Cleveland Electric Illuminating company came after Bradley visited Ben Ling, assistant to the C. E. I. president.

Bradley did not go to the witness stand during the hearing which began last Wednesday. His attorneys, Marvin C. Harrison and

'DEAL' ADDS TO TENSION

Powers Hear Hitler, Mussolini Agree to Let Italy Win Control In Spain.

BULLETIN

PARIS —(AP)— Premier Leon Blum today dispatched an urgent appeal to British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain to join him in immediate attempts to bring about a Spanish armistice.

(By International News Service)

PARIS—With collapse of Spain's government reported imminent in the face of a slashing insurgent onslaught, France today massed troops, guns and warplanes along her Pyrenees border.

This action was taken as the loyalist Spanish government, on the brink of collapse, begged Paris for aid against the combined Spanish and Italian legions of rebel Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

France's famed troops moved to protect the menaced border as statesmen here and in London expressed fears of a deal between Chancellor Hitler and Premier Mussolini to let Italy win out in Spain.

Moves With Speed.

Fears were expressed that Hitler has reached an agreement with Mussolini on Spain in return for Il Duce's passive acceptance of the Nazi German coup incorporating Austria into the third reich.

Taking no chances, the new government of Premier Leon Blum moved with lightning speed to strengthen its defenses for whatever may result from the swift trend of developments.

Blum's defense council enlisted the aid of the labor unions to place all French war industries on a 24-hour daily production schedule.

Mrs. Janonis, police said, was married to Burton last June but they separated less than a month later and were divorced recently. She resumed use of her name by an earlier marriage.

LONDON — (INS)—In retaliation against Germany's annexation of Austria, Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain today firmly warned Berlin that "under the present circumstances, nothing can be done about (Germany's) colonial demands."

(By International News Service)

VIENNA—Maj. Emil Fey, former Austrian vice chancellor and minister of public security, ended his life today as triumphant German Nazis tightened their grip on this new "eastern province" of the third reich.

Fey, for years an inveterate opponent of the Nazi creed, committed suicide with his wife and son.

Thus he joined in death his former friend and colleague, the late Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss, who was assassinated in July, 1934, when the Nazis attempted their unsuccessful Vienna putsch. At that time Fey was kept prisoner in the Vienna chancellery while Dollfuss was slain.

Made Death Pact.

It was learned that Fey, his wife and 17-year-old son evidently died together in a suicide pact.

First, according to authorities, Fey shot his wife and the boy. Then he sent a bullet crashing into his own brain. Officials said he killed himself at 4 a. m. He was believed to have acted in protest

On his plea of guilty to an indictment charging robbery, Carlton Zeiters, 27, of Shelby, confessed electric sweeper thief, today was sentenced to one to 15 years in the Ohio penitentiary when he appeared in court at Dayton.

Zeiters, former inmate of the Mansfield reformatory, admitted the theft of a number of electric sweepers throughout the western half of Ohio, including several in Mansfield.

C. W. Magsig, assistant Montgomery county prosecutor, told the court that Zeiters had figured in at least 60 robberies in Dayton in recent months, an Associated Press dispatch said.

Ashbrook Seeking 10th Term In Congress In '38 Election

Congressman William A. Ashbrook, veteran legislator from the 17th Ohio district, which includes Richland county, who announced today that he is definitely in the race for re-nomination at the August primary, will be seeking his 10th term in congress this year.

"I am a candidate for re-election," Ashbrook said briefly.

He added that 50 nominating petitions which have been circulated for him in the district already contained more than 3,500 names.

Ashbrook, a Democrat and for years the publisher of a weekly newspaper in Johnstown, Licking county, is the second candidate to announce officially that he will be in the race for the congressional post.

A resident of Johnstown, Ashbrook served seven terms in congress in succession from 1907 to 1921. He was elected again in 1934 and re-elected in 1936.

He is expected to have little or no opposition in the Democratic primary.

The only other candidate to announce for congress in the district is Col. Oliver H. Dockery, Newark Republican, who ran second in a field of six in the primary two years ago.

While he has not announced for the office, Philip Wolfe, former Mansfield service-safety director under Mayor Earl A. McFarland, is expected to try for the Republican nomination.

James Glenn, Coshocton Republican, who has been defeated twice by Ashbrook, also has been mentioned as a G. O. P. congressional possibility.

15 Dead, Hundreds Injured as Tornado Whips 3 States

200 BUILDINGS IN RUINS, LOSS TWO MILLIONS

Twister Strikes In Arkansas, Missouri, and Illinois; Power Failure Hampers Search.

(By International News Service)

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—Fifteen persons were dead today in the wake of a tornado that roared up the Mississippi river valley through Arkansas, Missouri and Illinois.

Hundreds in its path were injured, scores of buildings crushed and spun about like toys, and more than $2,000,000 damage inflicted.

The town worst hit by the storm was Belleville, Ill., where seven were killed. Six more died in Kenneth, Mo., and one each in Glenview and Centerville, Ill.

Starts In Arkansas.

The early spring wind and rain reached destructive force in the northeastern tip of Arkansas late yesterday afternoon and then wallowed up the river valley along the eastern edge of Missouri and into Illinois.

It whipped along West Main street in Belleville about a mile from the center of town for nearly six blocks, sweeping down all in its 100-yard path. Nearly 200 buildings were destroyed or badly damaged. A huge smokestack on the Suppiger Canning factory crumpled as if from a charge of dynamite and shaved off the building from the second floor to the ground.

Telephone and light poles littered the streets and the tangle of hve wires hampered rescue workers. Gas mains leading into the wrecked buildings poured forth a dangerously inflammable cloud until the flow was cut off.

Autos Tossed In Air.

Automobiles and even heavy trucks were tossed about like toys. Joseph Roesch, president of the Roesch Enamel works, was instantly killed when his car was hurled against a tree.

Rescue crews worked through most of the night in the stricken area by moonlight and flashlamp until emergency flood lights were rigged by the power company.

The Red Cross immediately installed a field first aid station and it was swamped with the injured. Nearly 100 persons were treated at St. Elizabeth's hospital, many of them seriously injured.

Monkey Business Over With Lena Back In Her Cage

After three days of adventure in the outside world, Lena, the pet monkey that has caused police numerous hectic moments in the past few days, was locked in her cage today.

The wary creature, owned by E. H. Sorgen, 316 Cline avenue, was captured by police yesterday after Mrs. Clarence C. Gass, 155 Poplar street, called the station to report that the monk was sitting on a window sill at her home—and would the officers kindly come and get the animal.

Capt. T. M. Bell and Lieut Bruce Friday, arriving on the scene decided that Lena was tired of running around in the rain and longed for the warmth and comfort of home. So with Mrs. Gass' permission, they opened the window for Lena to enter—but the chase had only begun. Lena scampered to the roof of the house, up to the chimney, out on the electric wires and back again.

A garden hose was brought out and while Capt. Bell played a stream of water on the monk, Friday waited just outside the open window.

Drenched, Lena leaped to the haven behind the open window and into Friday's open arms. Down came the window and the monkey business was over. Sorgen called by police tucked Lena in a basket and returned her to her cage with her mate, Jake, who returned voluntarily after his short dash for freedom Saturday afternoon.

The largest crowd ever to attend a Father-Scout banquet in Mansfield is expected Thursday evening at the Westinghouse cafeteria for the 18th annual banquet.

Guest speaker at the banquet will be Ozark Ripley, well known writer of outdoor life stories, hunter and fisherman.

Other numbers on the program will include the Westinghouse Glee club; a vocal solo by Marjie Swigart; a song fest between the scouts and their dads, led by Maurice Stretch; an outdoor handicraft display by Troop No. 1; the history of the American flag by Troop 2; a first aid demonstration by Troop 4; tap dancing by scouts of Troop 7; a comedy sketch, "Irish Nitwits" by Maurice Stretch, and Lawrence Chamberlain; "Hillbilly Harmony" by Scout Jackie Spicer, and the cast off of the "Stormy Petrel" by Sea Scouts lead by Clifford Hartnett.

Police Act After Life Termer Confesses; Convicted Killer Gets New Hope.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—The "firecracker" slaying of Robert Lindsey, Jeffersonville pool room proprietor, last July 4, was re-opened today as officials studied the statement of a life termer in Ohio penitentiary that he fired the fatal shot.

Everett Jones, 33, of Fayette county, is in the prison's death row under sentence to be electrocuted March 25 for the holdup slaying, but Wray Bevens, clemency secretary to Gov. Martin L. Davey, announced late yesterday that Walter Barnes, 19, serving life in connection with the same case, had shouldered blame for the killing.

Previously Jones claimed he fired the shot. At his trial last Dec. 2 he testified:

"Lindsey reached for his gun. When he turned it toward me while I still had him covered, a firecracker exploded outside in the street and, believing that Lindsey had fired at me, I fired twice in quick succession."

Barnes had pleaded guilty to second-degree murder after he testified Jones killed Lindsey while Barnes waited outside.

FIGHTING WOMAN LAWYER TOPS LIST OF 'GRAFT' CHALLENGERS

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS—A pretty woman of 38 with a pleasing dimple when she smiles, alert blue eyes and modishly arranged graying hair—that is Agnes B. Dickinson who ranks topnotch today in this business of bringing taxpayers' suits as an outgrowth of the senate graft investigation.

To date this youthful woman attorney has brought three actions as a direct result of the inquiry. She has challenged the validity of the Shaw Transport company's liquor hauling contract and sued to recover $6,000,000 from the "hot-mix" industry on its members' sales of road materials to the state.

Before these suits she jumped headlong into the dispute over continuance of the investigating committee's work, filing a petition for a declaratory judgment whether legislative committees pass out of existence with sine die adjournment of the legislature.

Mrs. Dickinson's appearance belies her fighting qualities on public questions, for she strikes a caller at her office as a pleasant, practicing woman attorney with only the average interest in governmental interests.

Her record sets the questioner right, however, and her comment that "I may have to go on the radio" to answer Governor Davey clinches the correct impression.

She was brought to Columbus as a child after her parents' death and at eight years of age sold newspapers on the city's east side. Her maiden name was Agnes Bryant.

Married in 1920, she divorced her husband in 1923. A daugnter, Marion, 16, is a student of music and the stage in Cincinnati.

PREDICT HOUSE WILL APPROVE HUGE FUND BILL

Opponents of Billion - Dollar Measure Say European Crisis Convincing Factor.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Leaders of the house opposition bloc battling the billion-dollar naval expansion bill today conceded defeat.

Increasing congressional anxiety over the Hitler coup in Austria was credited with driving members whose position was in doubt into the administration's fold.

Rep. Maverick (D) of Texas, leader of the coalition bloc fighting the expansion program, declared frankly the house would pass the bill.

Miss Jeanette Rankin, a lobbyist for the National Council for the Prevention of War, active in opposing the bill, also conceded house approval of the measure and declared she was pinning her hopes on the senate.

'No Doubt Whatsoever.'

From an administration source, House Whip Boland (D) of Pennsylvania, came an assertion that "there is no doubt whatsoever" that the lower chamber will pass the measure.

"While there was never any doubt in my mind that it would pass, the European crisis has more than convinced many members of the need for the program," Boland declared.

Maverick also viewed the European situation as strengthening the administration's support on the naval building issue. But he gave this warning to his Democratic colleagues:

"The acts of this mad Hitler are developing much the same psychology here as the kaiser's acts did in World war days.

"We should not forget that when President Wilson asked the nation to return a Democratic congress in 1918, the people voted in Republicans and completed their repudiation of war in 1920 by voting the Democratic administration out."

Although asserting house approval of the expansion bill appeared a certainty, Maverick predicted that its controversial declaration of naval policy would be stricken out.

COSTLY CRASH

Butler Men Get 30 Days In Jail After Collision.

Two Butler men were serving 30-day sentences in county jail on three different counts.

The charges were the outgrowth of an automobile collision on the Newville road northeast of Butler Monday afternoon.

Marshall Russell Bebout of Butler arrested LaRue Jones, 28, and John Lutz, 30, both of Butler, after they had fled from the scene of the accident after assaulting Raymond Switzer, of near Butler, whose car they had hit.

In municipal court yesterday Jones pleaded guilty to operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol. He was sentenced to 30 days in jail, his operator's permit was revoked for one year and he was fined $100 and costs. He was also convicted on a charge of failing to give his name and address after an accident and was fined $25 and costs on the charge.

Lutz pleaded guilty to a charge of assault and battery and was also sentenced to 30 days in jail and fined $100 and costs.

Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch suspended both $100 fines on the condition that each man pay a half of the damage to Switzer's car, which had not yet been estimated

The Great Game of Politics

—By FRANK R. KENT

Significant Tax Revolt.

THE OUTSPOKEN views on taxation recently expressed by Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, have not received as much attention as they deserve. They not only are indicative of the final form of the 1938 tax bill but are highly significant of the situation as it exists in the congress and in the Democratic party.

Perhaps, without conscious intent, though Harrison is far too experienced a man not to know the political import of his own words, his utterances practically proclaim what for some time has been apparent to the discerning—to wit, that the president is no longer in control of congress and his grip on his party has been loosened to an extent which makes his domination of the 1940 convention doubtful and any idea of a third term absurd. Better than anything else, it makes clear the distance he has slipped in less than a year.

FOR EXAMPLE, it is inconceivable that last March either the house would have rejected the president's pet "third-basket" proposal or that Senator Harrison would have declared himself strongly for taxation features, one of which flatly says the president made a mistake and the other of which negatives one of his most consistently promoted theories. Last year the house would have accepted any proposal that came from Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Harrison would not have voiced his views until he had White House approval. In brief, in March, 1937, the president was in complete control and the idea of effectual opposition to his wishes was not seriously entertained.

NOW WE find not only the house in revolt on various matters, but the chairman of the senate finance committee promulgating tax views known to be distasteful to the president. Senator Harrison urges a complete repeal of the undistributed profit tax and a broadening of the base so as to bring in a million or so taxpayers now exempt. Both these proposals have strong support, in the finance committee and out, among Democratic senators. Yet the first completely repudiates a tax policy to which Mr. Roosevelt still clings, while the second, by lowering the exemptions, would demonstrate painfully to a great many individuals the basic flaw in the New Deal philosophy that the poor get the free ride and only the rich have to pay, than which no more cruelly fallacious doctrine was ever preached.

THE Harrison argument for complete repeal of the surplus tax, which the house bill merely modifies, is that the plan has not worked and to retain it even in skeletonized form will be bad for business. Lowering exemptions, Mr. Harrison asserts, will not only provide needed revenue, but by making millions more people tax conscious strengthen public sentiment against waste and for economy. This coming at a time when Mr. Roosevelt is being prodded by his radical friends to launch another spending program and when he is backing a reorganization bill which utterly ignores the chance of annually saving $100,000,000, the proposal of Senator Harrison to tax lower bracket incomes so as to increase sentiment against spending can hardly please the White House.

THE situation in congress is a direct reflection of the situation in the country. All 435 members of the House and 32 members of the senate come up for renomination and re-election this fall. These men—particularly those in the house and particularly in an election year—keep close tab on the feeling of the people in their districts and states. Their independence of the White House wishes has a direct relationship to the diminished popular strength of the president. Senator Harrison, for example, knows that while his tax proposals may be offensive to Mr. Roosevelt, they are popular with the people who have become alarmed over the business slump, are increasingly skeptical of the soundness of the New Deal policies and are anxious to see business regain its health.

SO clearly has this been made apparent that no one in congress is any longer afraid to assert himself against the administration. They have ceased to fear reprisals either from the White House or from the voters as a consequence of independence. What it means is that the New Deal has played out; the poorer people, as was inevitable, are beginning to pay for its blundering stupidity and to realize that they have been led up a blind alley by an overconfident executive, now confronted by problems with which he has not the capacity to deal, and never did.

It is not a pleasant situation to contemplate and there is a painful time ahead, but it is at least encouraging to realize that congress has stopped following blindly and that the people are beginning to see the shoddiness and silliness of the doctrines so emotionally preached these last five years. It may be too late or it may not be too late to get back to safety, but the certain thing is that the Roosevelt delusion has passed. The practical men of the administration are aware of this now. A suspicion of it has seeped into the White House itself, which accounts for a number of things.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Youngsters who might envy Deanna Durbin ought to know about the meals the 15-year-old singer misses for her art. Unlike Tommy Tucker, Deanna sings but gets no supper.

She goes supperless every Wednesday when she sings on the air for Eddie Cantor, nearly every Saturday when she records for her films, and on odd nights when she sings at banquets or benefits.

Wednesdays she takes a glass of orange juice about 4:30 p. m., and eats no more until she's off the air, about 9. When she sings at a banquet she may be surrounded by food—but can't touch a bite until she finishes her numbers, long after other banqueteers have topped off their meal. By then it's too late for food, as she mustn't eat a heavy meal before retiring. She drinks a cup of hot chocolate and goes to bed.

Ralph Bellamy, whose house with practically everything in it went crumbling off down the Los Angeles river during the flood, can work hard and in time replace most of the valuables he lost. All he saved was three suits of clothes and a typewriter. But he can't replace Mrs. Bellamy's collection of original Joseph Conrad letters.

Ralph is playing the movie producer in "Boy Meets Girl," the picture that marks James Cagney's return to the Warner lot. The film got under way, immediately after the flood, with no special celebration heralding the prodigal's return. Ingenious souls had three trumpets on the set, according to more or less reliable report, the idea being that three Warner brothers should sound off a welcome to Cagney. But no Warner brothers showed. Cagney and crew went to work untrumpeted.

Jimmie Savo, the pantomimist, is setting an example his famous fellow-specialist, Charlie Chaplin, might watch with interest. In "Reckless Living" Jimmie is breaking his long professional silence for a speaking role.

The transition, however, is not without its difficulties. Savo has to talk around or through the cigar which is as much his trademark as Chaplin's shoes and cane, and — "Juggling eight oranges while walking a tight wire is easier," he maintains.

Describing the method of interpretation, Mrs. Gifford made four points. They were: interpretation by the supreme court, the congress, the president and the people; interpretation by such means as the dictionary to learn the true meaning of the clauses in question, the intention of the makers or framers of the constitution when it is possible to know them may influence the interpretation; and the psychological or logical method of interpretation.

Mother, Daughter Problem

By VIRGINIA LEE

A psychologist recently made the statement that girls are jealous of and hate their mothers from infancy; that a girl is "jealous and envious (of her mother) from earliest childhood, and looks upon her mother as a persistent enemy."

Now, I don't believe that any more than I think that women cannot get along together, are catty and poor sports. I know better. If mothers and daughters do not get along together it is usually the mother's fault, or it is that daughter is at an emotional age and so is extra sensitive about things mother says and does.

That there may be jealousy on both sides I admit. Fathers are quite apt to make a big fuss over the young daughter and forget that mother likes to hear pretty things said too. The world revolves around the young, and mother may feel sort of on the shelf at times. It is exactly the same thing with fathers and sons. I have seen fathers who were jealous of their sons, resented the close tie between mother and son, and therefore were not able to be good friends with the younger men.

At any rate, my letters the last day or so seem to harp on such family problems. The latest says:

"DEAR MISS LEE: I'm so discouraged and heartbroken that I feel that I don't want to go on living. I don't seem to get along with my mother or the rest of the family. I don't know why. I do most of the work at home. Mother is in poor health. I have tried getting a job outside but haven't had any luck so far.

"My mother and I never get along, although I try awfully hard to do things that would please her, but it seems that everything I do is wrong. I'm getting so that I'm scared to do anything now. I hope you can help me, Miss Lee, or advise me what to do.

"DISCOURAGED."

I imagine that your mother's poor health is the cause of her being so hard to please. Discouraged. Don't you think so? Her nerves are shot and she nags to relieve herself. It is too bad and very discouraging, as you say, but that is about the size of it. Your mother probably feels as badly as you do—even worse—about her inability to get along peaceably with you, but seems unable to control her temper.

If you look upon her as a sick person instead of a disagreeable one, won't it be easier to bear her fault finding? Do the work well for your own satisfaction, and try not to mind her scolding. Get out whenever you can and take your mind off your troubles. That will help, and when your mother gets better and you are free to return to school or find a job for yourself, you will forget this unpleasant interlude.

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, March 17.

A DAY of many problems and perplexities is read from the ruling lunar and mutual aspects of important planets. Things will be lively to the point of excitement and commotion, but not all this stirring about will be desirable or contribute to happiness. On the contrary, there may be sorrow, grief, misfortune and a surprising turn in the intimate affairs, unless precaution and discretion be exercised. Much merriment is in sight.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves in a very active lively and exciting year, with many angles that may cause problems and perplexity. A surprising or unaccountable event may cause anxiety, and there may be a grief or bereavement. Still, there are signs of lively functions for the young.

A child born on this day may be jolly, full of life and fun and, at the same time, serious and studious. Its fine mentality may enhance its popularity and cutural contacts.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

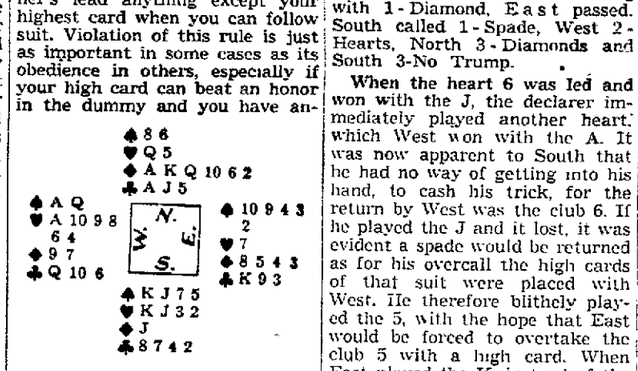
"The Authority on Authorities"

KEEPING A COVERER

"Finessing against your partner" is traditional among unsound plays. In most circumstances, this term means playing on your partner's lead anything except your highest card when you can follow suit. Violation of this rule is just as important in some cases as its obedience in others, especially if your high card can beat an honor in the dummy and you have another just below it in value. Then usually the lower of your two cards should be used, while you keep the coverer to use later in killing the dummy's honor.

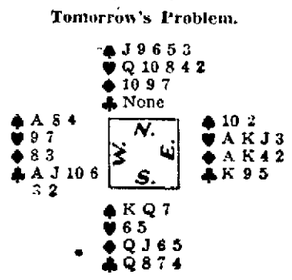
Here North started the bidding with 1-Diamond, East passed, South called 1-Spade, West 2-Hearts, North 3-Diamonds and South 3-No Trump.

When the heart 6 was led and won with the J, the declarer immediately played another heart, which West won with the A. It was now apparent to South that he had no way of getting into his hand, to cash his trick, for the return by West was the club 6. If he played the J and it lost, it was evident a spade would be returned as for his overcall the high cards of that suit were placed with West. He therefore blithely played the 5, with the hope that East would be forced to overtake the club 5 with a high card. When East played the K, instead of the 9, South was able to make the contract, by cashing six diamond tricks, one heart and two clubs.



(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

After two passes North bid 1-Spade. How should the bidding proceed from that point?

THEATER

THOSE who cheered for Bette Davis to play Scarlett O'Hara and were cried down, will find comfort in "Jezebel," the smash drama of Civil war days in the Old South. Bette plays a role almost identical with Scarlett, and according to those who saw the preview, gives a marvelous performance of the tempestuous Southern belle. . . . Jane Withers netted $5,000 a week for four weeks while on her personal appearance tour of Chicago, Cleveland, Cincinnati and Detroit. . . . Marie Wilson will play the innocent-and-dumb heroine of "Boy Meets Girl," once assigned to Marion Davies, while James Cagney will play the male lead of the playwright. . . .

Tracy at Madison.

Fast talking Lee Tracy gets himself into a mess of woe in his latest picture, "Crashing Hollywood," when he writes a crime mystery scenario which brings police and gangsters on the run. It is an exact and authentic story of a real bank robbery and one man at least—the robber—knows he has written the actual solution into the scenario. The secret is that one of the gang of bank robbers had told the story to the writer, without divulging his own part in it. The writer becomes involved with police, loses his girl and sets the real robber plotting his death for knowing too much. Joan Woodbury, Paul Guilfoyle, Lee Patrick, Tom Kennedy and Bradley Page are in the cast. "Crashing Hollywood, opens a two day engagement today at the Madison.

"Snow White" Remains.

"Snow White and The Seven Dwarfs" wil remain at the Ohio theater throughout the week, thus maintaining an unbroken record of being held over at every theater where it has been shown. So popular is the picture that Walt Disney, its creator, has been besieged with requests to make other pictures with the same characters, but he has definitely announced that there will be no sequel to "Snow White"; that when the picture was finished the seven little fellows and their princess went back into the paint pots of the Disney studio. But millions who see the picture will be loathe to part with the characters, especially Dopey, with his good natured, silly grin and his sly subterfuges to win a kiss from the princess. The animals and birds, of course will continue to inhabit the Disney films as they have always been pictured.

Younger Players Score.

Two younger players score in the latest screen version of "The Barrier," Rex Beach's stirring tale of the Yukon gold rush in '98, which is an attraction at the Ritz. Jean Parker and James Ellison who play the youthful lovers, are both comparatively new, although they've had several years work in filmdom. Miss Parker scored in "The Ghost Goes West" and "Sequoa," while Ellison had played in a number of the Hopalong Cassidy pictures before he got his first big chance as young Buffalo Bill in "The Plainsman." But all of the honors of the Alaskan picture do not go to these two young players, for there is Leo Carrillo, who can always hold his own in any picture. He has one of his best roles as Poleon Doret, the half breed. A romantic comedy, with Leslie Howard, Bette Davis and Olivia de Havilland, rounds out the Ritz program.

"Barbary Coast" Shown.

Re-issues of popular pictures will be exhibited at the Majestic the last half of the week, when "Slim" and "Barbary Coast" are shown. The latter is a dramatic and actionful episode in the early days of the wild Barbary coast when vice and lawlessness held full sway. Edward G. Robinson as the vice and gambling lord of the Coast, falls in love with Miriam Hopkins who is forced by circumstances to cast her lot in with his after her fiance is killed. Later Joel McCrea, a young prospector for gold, comes along and the two men wage a battle for her. In "Slim," Pat O'Brien, Henry Fonda, Stuart Erwin, and Margaret Lindsay are shown in a drama which glorifies the telephone lineman and in which a man makes the supreme sacrifice for a pal and the woman they both love.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

I DO NOT THINK Mary realized what impulse deep in her consciousness was responsible for her generous plan to have Miss Whitlock "have herself a time in the city," while there was really nothing for her to do at the hotel suite but mark time until I should have to go away and leave her to keep guard over my husband's niece who, we feared was menaced by some malevolent plan against her happiness concocted by her father-in-law.

But I knew that the girl's desire to have me "all to herself," as she used to say to me when she was an unhappy school girl in her teens, was the unconscious, prodding motive behind her plan.

That Miss Whitlock shared my knowledge I knew by the comprehending smile she gave Mary. There was compassion also in the smile, and once again I mentally commented upon the rare nature that the nurse possesses, free from any trace of pique at happenings that many women would consider slights.

Nurse Accepts.

"You can't expect me to protest very volubly against a plan like that," she told Mary. "I accept gladly, on one condition."

"We'll consider it," Mary said pertly.

"There are really two," the nurse said resolutely. "The first is that no matter what plans I may have made, you will feel free to call me 'on duty' at any time."

"Granted." Mary gave her a friendly, gamin grin.

"The second is that I call you twice a day while I am out, so that if you have sudden need for my services, I can hurry back."

"A wise and thoughtful precaution," I commented, "and one that makes the plan flawless."

"You mean fool-proof," Mary said saucily, wrinkling her nose at me.

"As you like," I retorted, smiling at her patent pleasure in the success of her little plan. Then I turned to Miss Whitlock.

"When would you like to start your journeyings?" I asked.

She hestitated and lowered her eyelashes for an instant. I knew that from beneath them, she was searching Mary's face, for it is a ruse I myself have employed. What she saw in it evidently brought her to a swift decision.

Goes Immediately.

"If it's all right yith you, I'd like to look up some friends this afternoon," she said. "And, if you don't need me at dinner time, I'd like to stay with them for that meal."

"Stay as long as you like," I told her cordially and sincerely. "If you come home after we are asleep, which I doubt, just keep on knocking until we answer. Both Mary and I have the happy faculty of waking a dozen times in the night and going directly back to sleep again, so you need have no compunctions upon the score of disturbing us."

"What comfortable people!" she said, smiling, and upon the word went to her room, emerging a few minutes later, dressed for the street. Bidding us a cheery goodbye, she left the apartment, much pleased with the chance for an outing.

All to Herself.

Mary waited only until the door closed before crossing the room to me and throwing her arms around me in a tempestuous bear hug.

"She's a dear!" she said. "I like her, but it's so nice to have you all to myself."

"It's only for a day or two," I reminded here. "As soon as the connecting door is put in, she'll have her own suite, and I'm sure she'll efface herself, especially when we're rehearsing."

"Which will be most of the time" she commented ruefully, then put a quick question.

"Do you think Uncle Dicky will invite us out to dinner again tonight? she asked, and the peal of the telephone punctuated her sentence.

"That probably is your answer," I told her, going to the telephone with a stormy query in my heart.

Would my husband betray any knowledge of the outrageous happening of the night before?

Manicuring Hints For Pretty Nails

By JULIET SHELBY

Central Press Writer on Beauty.

LAST NIGHT at one of the town's nightiest night sopts this department got a real shock. At our table was one of those lovely ladies who adorn the cafe society of two continents. Her hair was adorably coiffed, her gown had the daring grace of Paris, her piquant beauty was enhanced by the artistry of her makeup. Then she leaned over.

Came the derouement, as our little French cousins say. Her nails had remnants of polish, her tips were long and ragged and the cuticle was sadly in need of care. It was one of the most incongruous things possible, and so out of place in comparison with the finished smartness of gown and hair.

With a little manicuring she could have had short but neat nails, and with a five-minute daily treatment she could have soon had beautiful strong fingernails. It's grooming from top to toe that makes a man beam with appreciation of his wife or girl.

If you are one who goes in for home manicuring, here's a good routine that loads of women have found very successful. Take your favorite manicuring set, olive oil and a dish of warm, soapy water. Using polish remover, take off all the old polish. Then dip your fingers in the water and let them soak for a few minutes, cleaning them with a nail brush. Dry your hands and work the cuticle back gently with a soft cloth. Use an emery board instead of a steel file for shaping the nails.

Use Cream on Stick.

Put some nail cream on your orange stick and work it around the nail and under the tip. Then cut off the extra cuticle skin with scissors. Be careful not to cut it too close. It is a good thing to wipe your scissors with alcohol. This will prevent any infection in case your hand slips. Now apply the lubricant again, sparingly. Buff the nails thoroughly, until they have a bright natural finish.

Next comes a brand new stunt, that was shown us by a very inventive minded manicurist. And it's really a big help. Put on your regular nail polish and while it is still slightly moist, using another brush, smooth olive oil over the polished surface. Don't put the oil on if the polish has not dried enough not to smear. With the olive oil the polish takes a little longer to dry, but it is well worth it. The oil gives added luster to the polish and is a fine conditioner for the nails, keeping them strong and healthy.

Olive oil is also a grand cure for breaking and splitting nails. Dip the fingers in the warm oil for about five minutes a day, and glory in the joys of fine fingertips.

Seeds can be sown in the cold frame about four weeks in advance of the time when they would ordinarily be planted outside. When the young plants are well started they can be set in the open ground, because by that time the danger of freezing weather will have passed.

Illness May Weaken Tygers For State Tournament Game

RANDOM SHOTS

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor.

THAT it takes more than mathematics to win the state basketball championship has been proven time and again.

However, Canton McKinley is rated as the favorite in this year's event opening in Columbus Thursday because it should reap some benefits from the law of averages.

Never a champion, Canton has been a most persistent contender. The Bulldogs have twice been runners-up in the seven times they have advanced to Columbus since 1923.

Marietta also has a fine tournament record, but the hoopsters from along the Ohio river hardly rate a chance this year if the team is judged by its mediocre record.

Hamilton merits consideration in the reckoning. So does Newark, which sports the best record of any of the finalists. Newark's lone defeat was administered by Massillon.

Bridgeport is the "dark horse." It climaxed a successful tournament bid by defeating Toronto to deprive state tournament fans the privilege of seeing one of the outstanding schoolboy cagers in the state in Tom Kinkade, who scored so many points that the natives lost count.

Mansfield was not rated in the district tournament, and is receiving even less consideration in the state finals. But the Tygers can't be counted out until they've been knocked out.

One can't help but give the Tygers a chance after their triumphant march through the best this section of the northwestern Ohio district had to offer in the way of competition.

"Sudden Death" Rule On Way Out.

BECAUSE luck played too great a part in deciding overtime games, the "sudden death" rule, under which the team scoring two points in the extra period is the victor, will probably be abolished next year.

The "sudden death" rule will govern play in the state tournament this week, but Commissioner H. R. Townsend of Ohio high schools has stated that he would advocate the playing of at least one full overtime period in future classics.

Overtime games in the district meets just completed proved unsatisfactory, according to the International News Service's Russell Fuller.

When two fives were knotted at the end of the regulation playing time they lost all sense of perspective in the ensuing moments. So anxious were they to be first to score that they literally went wild and forgot systems, plays or tricks that had been taught them.

An observer, a prominent Columbus cage coach, has pointed out that the drain on the nervous system in the abbreviated overtime vogue is as great as the physical strain during the entire game.

Hallabrin Unable to Drill With Club as It Preps For Thursday's Tilt.

By OSCAR RUHL
News-Journal Sports Editor.

MANSFIELD high school's district court champions launched preparations for their opening state tournament game yesterday afternoon with the reliable Johnny Hallabrin an absentee.

Today Coach Russ Murphy planned to take the Tygers to Columbus for a brief drill on the Coliseum court at the fairground where they will meet Roger Bacon of Cincinnati in a first round game at 7 p. m. Thursday, and it was doubtful whether the stellar Mansfield guard would be able to accompany his teammates.

Guard on Sick List.

Hallabrin has been unable to attend classes this week because of illness, and it was not a certainity today that he would be able to play against the Cincinnati club Thursday, although his condition is improved.

With the steady guard out of the lineup, the Tygers' victory chances will be lessened considerable.

The mainstay of one of the finest hoop aggregations assembled by Coach Russ Murphy in several years, Hallabrin is needed in the tournament.

While probably not a consistent scorer, the brilliant athlete is a fine court general, steady in the pinches and a defensive player with few equals.

Murphy has hopes that Hallabrin will be available Thursday, but is preparing Ike Smith to take over his duties in an emergency.

The Tyger tactician understands that the club home town boys engage in their opener has a lot of what it takes to win basketball games.

Murphy learned this at the drawings in Columbus Monday from coaches of teams which met Roger Bacon. The team is good-sized for one thing, Murphy was told.

Not extremely large, Murphy expects his Tygers to stack up favorably with the Roger Bacons in this department, but the adversary is reported to have considerable more height at the guards than Mansfield.

Bacons Aggressive.

Murphy also learned that the Bacons are very aggressive, apt to foul a great deal. They are supposed to be particularly strong under the baskets on rebounds, and present a style of play similar to Sandusky, using a man-to-man defense.

Bacon employs a fast-breaking attack, which has been so effective that it has not been necessary to attempt many long shots

Since receiving this valuable information, Murphy is more pessimistic than ever over the Tygers' chances.

And, judging from the Cincinnati team's record, he has reason to be a bit skeptical.

But Bacon is about as predictable as the gentleman who recently "saved" Austria, it is reported.

Cincinnati teams normally have been poor tournament competitors

In Les Jacobs, a forward, Bacon has the second highest scorer in the Greater Cincinnati league.

Armstrong Too Tough For Arizmendi.

LOS ANGELES—(INS)—Henry Armstrong, world's featherweight champion, took a ten round decision here last night from Baby Arizmendi, veteran Mexican fighter.

Arizmendi, who lays claim to never having been knocked out or off his feet, gave the champ a tough battle before a crowd of 10,500 spectators. Both boys stood toe to toe on several occasions, throwing punches wildly in desperate attempts for a knockout.

HE'S READY

Michigan U's negro ace, Bill Watson, is ready for another record-breaking track-and-field spree this spring. He's one of those rare one-man track teams. Bill holds the Big Ten shot put record and also won the discus, and broad jump last season. This year he has added sprinting and high jumping to his list. But he is a world record contender only in the shot put.

Takes Routt's Place on Card

Talaber Meets Montana on Thursday Mat Show.

Joe Montana, the Camden, N. J., Italian, will have more competition than he bargained for in the Armory Thursday night. Joe was signed to meet R. R. (Railroad) Routt, but the latter came up with a leg injury yesterday and was forced to cancel his engagement.

Tim Nolan, Quality Club matchmaker, immediately contacted Frankie Talaber, sensational Chicago youth, who recently held champion Bill Weidner to a draw in Columbus. Talaber is well-versed in scientific fundamentals.

Talaber, respecting Montana's record, has agreed to take the match, so he will meet the Italian in a two-out-of-three fall match, with a 90-minute time limit, co-heading Thursday's great show with Walter Stratton and Frankie Hart.

DELAWARE, SEEKING 'NEW WORLDS TO CONQUER,' STOPPED BY MANSFIELD IN FIRST TOURNAMENT

By TOMMY DEVINE
(United Press Sports Writer)

A TALL, white-haired doctor today busied himself with routine duties about a clinic at Jackson, Mich., but his thoughts were centered on the 30th annual Ohio Scholastic Basketball tournament which opens in Columbus tomorrow.

The physician was Dr. J. W. (Wes) Page, the "father" of the state's well-formed tournament organization which annually provides the major athletic activity for 1,100 schools.

Tomorrow the 32 teams from that giant group that survived a month's gruelling elimination play, will begin their battles for the coveted crowns that now rest in possession of Hamilton and Columbus Upper Arlington. When play starts Dr. Page, along with a handful of other veteran scholastic observers, will marvel at the manner in which a meet he inaugurated on a "small time" basis at Ohio Wesleyan university in 1909 has developed.

Dr. Page starred in football, baseball and track at Wesleyan from 1901 through 1904 and was a teammate of Branch Rickey, general manager of the St. Louis Cardinals and the creator of baseball's far-flung "farm" system.

Following graduation Dr Page became his alma mater's first graduate manager of athletics. It was while serving in this capacity that he originated the scholastic cage tournament.

Back of the first tournament is the picture of an ambitious high school coach who sought "new worlds to conquer." The state meet came into existance when Dr. Page obligingly sought to provide fulfillment of the mentor's dream.

In 1909 Delaware had an exceptionally strong high school team. It went through its regular season with a brilliant record and its coach desired to test the team against other top-ranking quintets. He discussed the question with Dr. Page in the cramped quarters of a little newspaper office and the Wesleyan graduate manager agreed to sponsor a tournament to select a "state champion."

Nine teams accepted invitations for the first meet. Lost in the dusty shuffle of time are the records of that inaugural tournament, but the host Delaware team and Mansfield went into the finals and the latter emerged with the title.

YUNCKER SPORTS UPHOLD PRESTIGE OF CITY LOOP

Undefeated Circuit Leader Only Host Team to Win on Carnival Program.

By CHARLES MARTIN

CITY CLASS A league teams didn't fare so well on the court carnival at Mansfield high last night.

Only one of the clubs was able to uphold the league prestige on the thrilling three-star program before a good sized crowd.

Yuncker Sports' undefeated aggregation topped off the show by beating the dangerous Globe Clothiers of Galion, 40 to 35, to register its 15th straight victory.

Westinghouse Electrics and Elks were defeated. The Electrics bowed to the Richland County Coaches, 49 to 40, in the opener, while the lodge dropped a 28 to 19 decision to the classy Bliss college club of Columbus in the middle affair.

Fisher Main Cog.

Bob Fisher, former Shelby high star, was the main cog of the Sports' attack. It was Fisher's clever overhand shots from near the corner of the court that kept Coach Jimmy Breres' outfit in front.

Galion shot into the lead in the opening seconds of the tilt, but once the Sports began to hit it was just too bad. Alex Kish, former Wittenberg ace, staked the invaders to a 2 to 0 lead, the only time his club was ahead.

Galion climbed within a point of the winners' lead twice, but was never able to supply the punch to go ahead.

Breres' club went into the intermission leading, 18 to 17.

The Yuncker outfit came back strong in the third stanza and with its rebounding play an important factor, increased its advantage to a comfortable margin. As the clubs resumed play in the final chapter the Yuncker team led, 32 to 25.

Fisher set the individual pace with 18 points, while Kish paced Galion with 13 points. Tom Farrell's brilliant rebounding was a feature of the game.

Bliss college put on a passing demonstration that completely swept the Elks off their feet. The Elkmen put up a real battle in the opening half, but couldn't keep it up. Bliss took a 6 to 4 lead in the first period, but the Elks rallied to knot the score at 13-all at halftime.

But from there on in it was all Bliss college. The Capital City aggregation set the City league representatives down with three buckets after the intermission.

The Columbus outfit put on a passing exhibition better than anything seen on the Senior high planks since the Waterloo Wonders.

Harris and Donahue were high for the winners with eight points apiece, while Gene Brandon topped the Elks with seven.

Rees Leads Coaches.

The County Coaches opened the card last night with a brilliant display of shooting. With Johnny Rees of Lexington leading the way, the Coaches, after trailing, 9 to 8, in the opening quarter, broke loose with some fine shots to take a lead they never relinquished. At the half the county team was ahead, 21 to 17, and then it went into the final frame leading, 35 to 26.

Rees dropped in 23 points for the Coaches, while Bob Shade was high-point man for the Electrics with 14 points.

Sees New Attendance Record This Year.

COLUMBUS — (INS) — Intense interest in the pending state basketball tournament might be responsible for the attendance record established last year being shattered, it appeared today.

High school athletic Commissioner H. R. Townsend said he could not remember when fans had been keyed to such a high pitch over high school basketball. He was certain that the 25,335 mark set in 1937 would be toppled or at least wobble a bit.

FEARS OF WAR LEAD TO SHARP BREAK ON MART

Prices Tumble $1 to $5 During Heavy Selling; Steel, Motors, Rubber, Oils Suffer.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — European and New York security markets broke sharply today in the midst of pessimistic reactions to the war-fears abroad.

Prices of leading issues on the New York stock exchange were down $1 to around $5 at midday in the heaviest selling volume in some weeks.

The London stock exchange, Amsterdam bourse and Paris bourse closed weaker. British government issues were down 1⅜ to 2⅛ pounds.

Leading foreign currencies again broke sharply in the flight of capital from European countries to find a refuge in the American dollar.

Wall Street houses with foreign connections said there was considerable selling of stocks in the New York market by European holders and the decline here also was attributed partly to a sympathetic re-action to the general weakness of security markets in Europe.

Prominent in the decline were United States Steel, Bethlehem Steel, General Motors, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber, United Aircraft, Boeing, Anaconda, Copper, Kennecott Copper, Westinghouse, International Nickel, American Smelting & Refining, Standard Oil of New Jersey and Johns-Manville.

The foreign selling in New York, Wall Street circles heard, was partly to establish dollar balances in this country.

The bond market likewise broke widely. Czechoslovakian governments broke $7 or more per $100 bond. Austrian governments — which have fallen around $40 since the Hitler coup over the week-end —lost around $4 today. Around midday, most of the domestic corporate trading favorites in the bond list were down around $1 to $3 or more. U. S. Governments were generally lower.

WAR IN SPAIN SPURS POWERS

France Rushing Troops, Arms to Pyrenees as Collapse of Strife Looms.

ernment at Barcelona openly admitting its position is desperate and perilously near collapse, the movement of French troops to the Pyrenees border was regarded as an implied threat against German and Italian troops fighting for the insurgents in Spain.

Tension of the situation was reflected in a series of unconfirmed reports that swept the capital. One said France is deploying a full army corps along the Franco-Spanish frontier, ready for any emergency. Another said the French defense counsil, at an extraordinary secret meeting, decided on a series of measures involving at least partial mobilization of the French army.

Dispatches Warships.

Following conferences between Premier Blum, Foreign Minister Joseph Paul-Boncour, War Minister Edouard Daladier and the highest army, navy and airforce officials, the navy sent several warships, including a cruiser, to Barcelona and other points on the Spanish Mediterranean coast to protect hundreds of French nationals and evacuate them if necessary.

The vessels were ordered to give what ever aid they can to Americans, Britons and other foreigners.

This activity began following a sudden visit to Paris by Spanish Premier Juan Negrin to plead for French aid for the loyalists. He flew back to his capital at Barcelona, empty-handed.

But the French government, conferring with Soviet Russia and Britain through diplomatic channels, was reported attempting to arrange a swift international mediation move to end the Spanish war. This appeared to be as far as the Blum government is willing to go, since Blum is believed determined not to risk an immediate European conflict by intervening directly in Spain.

CALLED AGAIN

Petit Jury Slated to Hear Two Damage Suits Thursday.

County petit jurors who were sent home twice this week when cases were settled just before they were to be tried, are scheduled to hear two damage suits in common pleas court tomorrow.

With four suits set for trial the first three days of the week, a jury session was cancelled at the last minute Monday by a continuance, and again yesterday jurors went home without doing any work.

Yesterday's case, a $775 judgment suit brought against the estates of the late Charles E Reynolds by Mrs Jeanette Young, was settled out of court after jurors had assembled for the trial.

The jury is scheduled to hear a $15 250 damage suit tomorrow, in which Linus F Phillips seeks that amount for injuries he allegedly received last April in an automobile collision in Shiloh. Blanche Summers is the defendant.

In a second case scheduled for Thursday, Ralph Tennant seeks a $400 judgment from Edith Pry, charging that the defendant misrepresented a property she sold him in Bucyrus.

WIDESPREAD SUICIDE WAVE HITS AUSTRIA

Ex-Minister Kills Wife, Son and Self as Nazis Tighten Grip on Country.

against recent developments in his native land which saw it incorporated into the Nazi reich.

An other similar tragedy was brought to light when Prof. Gustav Bayer, 69-year-old savant of the University of Innsbruck was found dead this morning.

It was reported he committed suicide by taking poison after first killing his daughter.

In addition, a widely known formal liberal, Friedrich Reitlinger, president of the Tyrolese industrial combine, also was reported to have taken his life.

Meanwhile, authorities worked speedily to restore order in Austria following the momentous events of the past few days, which saw Austria 'cease to exist" as a nation and become a part of the Nazi reich.

Bolsters Police Forces.

Chief Heydrich of the secret state police joined forces with Heinrich Himmler, leader of the Nazi gestapo and brown shirt storm troops, to bring the new province back to normal.

Heydrich declared that total arrests since Hitler engineered his putsch had totalled less than two hundred anti-Nazis.

Numerous Jews also were reported to have taken their lives, including the famous Vienna skin specialist, Dr. Gabriel Nobl, and his wife.

It also was reported that Dr. Godfried Kunwald, eminent Austrian economist, whose works on currency were reputed to have formed the basis of the present United States silver policy, was found dead in his apartment.

Many of those arrested were prominent Jews caught attempting to flee from Austria. They included Herr Bosel, reputedly the richest Jew in all Austria. Authorities said he was picked up near Salzburg with a half million schillings and a large bag of diamonds on his person.

Chancellor Hitler was back in Germany after his triumphal march through his new domain, during which he formally announced to the world Austria's annexation by the German Reich.

Before departing, however, he gave Moscow a thinly veiled notice that the Austrian province now stands as a "bulwark against storm in the east." Then he returned to his stronghold to deal with international forces menacing his expanded power.

Berlin Prepares Hitler Welcome.

BERLIN—(U.P.)—Fuehrer Adolf Hitler returns in triumph from Vienna today to this capital of his "greater Germany," and hundreds of thousands of joyous Germans waited to give him a reception unprecedented in its history.

Shops and schools were closed. Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels, broadcasting the time of Hitler's return, called on all Berliners to participate in a mass celebration of the fulfillment of the fuehrer's dream—union of Germany and Astria.

Goebbels asked the people to line the streets to pay homage to Hitler as he drives from Tempelhof to the Wilhelmstrasse. Houses and stores were decorated with Nazi swastikas, and in the streets, subways and cafes the bloodless Nazification of Austria was the only topic of conversation.

Nazis Won't Push Into Italy, Duce Says.

ROME—(AP)— Benito Mussolini today promised his people that the Pan-German expansion never would penetrate Italian frontiers but at the same time pronounced a benediction on Adolf Hitler's absorption of Austria.

"Our frontiers are sacred," Il Duce shouted to an assemblage that filled the chamber of deputies.

"We will not discuss them. We will defend them."

His promise was broadcast to all Italy. It was the premier's reply to doubts of his own people alarmed over the extension of a mighty German state to the Brenner Pass, gateway between Austria and Italy.

Mussolini declared it would have been "an historical and political absurdity" for Austria, a German state, to have remained independent and anti-German.

Il Duce referred to his dispatch of Italian troops to the Brenner Pass when Austria's Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss was assassinated July 25, 1934—a gesture to prevent Nazification of Austria.

"No Austrian ever thanked me for that," he said.

He declared that the Versailles Treaty provision that Austria must remain forever independent "was absurd and precarious."

He denied that Italy ever had undertaken to guarantee permanently Austrian independence.

"What has happened in the last few days shows that the Austrian people were overwhelmingly for Anschluss," Il Duce declared.

He demanded to know whether the world could be "so ignorant as to believe that Italy could be impressed by figures of the number of Germans" now upon the borders of Italy.

France, Russia Agree To Defend Czechs.

PARIS—(AP)—France and Russia agreed today that both would fight to defend Czechoslovakia if she were attacked.

Jacob Suritz, Soviet ambassador to France, called on Foreign Minister Joseph Paul-Boncour at the Quai D'Orsay and delivered assurances similar to those delivered by the Soviet ambassador to Praha—that Russia would fight for the defense of her Czech ally.

Paul-Boncour replied to the assurances with a promise that France too would fight in the same cause.

Adolf Hitler, fuehrer of a realm expanded bloodlessly last week by his Austrian coup, had proclaimed himself the "protector" of all Germanic peoples on Germany's borders in his Feb. 20 reichstag speech.

Incorporation of Czechoslovakia's 3,500,000 Sudeten Germans is believed to be the next objective of Hitler's Pan-Geomanism.

Both France and the Soviet union planned to rush fighting and bombing planes to Czechoslovakia if Hitler resorted to force to achieve this objective, informed sources said.

Nazis Jail Jews Fleeing Austria.

LONDON—(U.P.)—Thousands of Austrian Jews are seeking to cross the frontier into Czechoslovakia, many without passports, reports which reached London said today.

Informants said that among Jews arrested by Nazi storm troops at the frontier were Siegmund Bosel, Vienna financier, and Karl Bondy, newspaper publisher of Vienna. In Bosel's motor car, it was asserted, the Nazis found $70,000 worth of jewels, and in Bondy's clothes they found a large amount of money, sewn between cloth and lining.

It was said that Nazis were watching the frontier closely. Bosel made great sums during the World war. Bondy published anti-Nazi newspapers, and the Nazis as soon as they got control, confiscated his papers and, publishing them with a Swastika cross in the title, embarked on a bitter anti-semetic campaign.

Several thousand abandoned automobiles have been found on the frontier and it was asserted that authorities had confiscated several millions of schillings found on Jews trying to escape. (A schilling is quoted at 19 cents.)

Vienna is only about 20 miles from the frontier, and many of the Jews were Viennese.

A Farmer's Diary

March 15.

TODAY I had the rare pleasure of visiting a home that has been abandoned for several years. It stood a good distance from the road, in an open field near the center of the farm.

The house is large and well preserved. The spacious slate roof has sheltered all that came beneath it for many years. It has a pleasant look, a homey atmosphere that still seems to welcome the stranger to its door.

The lawn is unkept and thickly overgrown with heavy tufts of matted grass. The fruit trees are left unpruned; some branches broken by the storm, still hang against the splintered crotch. The fences that enclosed the garden and the lawn are decayed below and many panels lie upon the ground. The bluebird, the robin and the lark sing sweetly in the unkept grounds.

I went in at the open kitchen door. I saw where the range had stood, and could picture in fancy the homely beauty of the past—the fragrance of fresh baked bread; pies, steaming hot, just lifted from the oven; the teakettle, whistling pleasantly, the slowly boiling pot of mush, with sweet odor of parched corn.

The mantel was there, where the family clock had ticked away the happy hours of contented living, the torturous moments of grief and separation.

I walked into the other rooms, richly finished in solid walnut, the floors of wide oak boards. Large sheets of paper hung from the walls in mockery. My voice echoed in the spacious rooms. I stood alone, for I was a stranger in this house, and had no memories of its past, but I felt the power of all that had been here seize me, and hold me in its grasp.

"Henceforward listen as we will
The voices of that hearth are still."

RELIEF TURNED OVER QUIETLY

City Takes Up Administration as It Ponders on Bonds to Raise Necessary Funds.

dinance that creates the positions at relief headquarters and fixes the salaries of the staff without calling for any changes in the personnel.

The measure will go to council Tuesday for approval with another ordinance being prepared today by City Solicitor Marion D. Ward, calling for the necessary appropriation of the funds to pay the salaries from the monthly allocation received by the city from the state. This will amount to approximately $3,600, including the allocation to Madison township.

Under the relief headquarters setup, the city and Madison township trustees have agreed to work together on relief.

The township however faces the same problem as the city, that of raising the necessary funds to provide for its 384 cases which last month cost the county $6,500.

While still undecided on providing for their share of the relief costs, W F. Beam, one of the five Madison trustees, said that the matter would be brought before the board at its regular session Saturday morning.

Short said the examiners would remain in Cincinnati indefinitely, later traveling to other sections of the state.

BRADLEY FIRES BACK AT DAVEY

Governor Should Be Indicted For Perjury, 'Graft' Witness Tells Cleveland Judge.

E. S. Byers, submitted his lengthy statement which asserted that the governor was "perfectly willing to use perjurers and perjury to serve his own ends."

It was explained that Bradley suffers from angina and had not spent a restful night. His attorneys said they wished to spare him the strain of testifying.

"No one needs to take my word in this matter for anything. All that is needed is to examine the records which are in existence, and to read the testimony which has been given by Gov. Davey and his brother and Tremper," Bradley's statement read.

"These records and this testimony establish conclusively that if anybody in this matter ought to be arrested, and indicted and convicted of perjury, Gov. Davey and his witness. Tremper, are excellent candidates for that attention."

The reference was to L. L. Tremper, an official of General Motors Truck corporation, who testified earlier in the hearing.

Referring to a meeting in New York, at which Bradley had testified that a $25,000 campaign contribution from General Motors had been arranged, the statement said:

"When L. L. Tremper testified that it was about air compressors, he testified falsely, and so did the governor.

" x x x Martin Davey x x x never passed up a chance in his life to get campaign contributions from anybody that could be persuaded or compelled to disgorge them. And it is a certainty that he not only hoped, but he confidently expected me to help him raise a war chest for his campaign in 1934.

"I have no means of proving what amounts were contributed to Gov. Davey's campaign fund, directly or indirectly as the result of my efforts. But I do know that he was extremely anxious for me to get all that we could.

" x x x In the spring of 1934 he was so broke and so eager for money to dig up contributions from any possible source, that he would go to any lengths to secure them or to hunt out some suckers who would help finance him."

GOES TO COURT ON STRETCHER

Wounded Accused Police Killer Hears Death Demanded.

COLUMBUS—(INS)—Carried into court on a wheeled stretcher, his spinal cord severed by a bullet, Carl Boettcher, 24, of Cleveland, charged with the murder of Detective Robert Cline, today heard Prosecutor Ralph J. Bartlett tell three judges "facts will be proven to warrant the death penalty."

Apparently in great pain, which necessitated frequent recesses, Boettcher, a member of the bandit gang that shot it out with four detectives at a west side rooming house, heard his defense counsel, Franklin Rubrecht, tell the court the defense would prove Cline was not shot by Boettcher.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Insist! Stubbornly refuse anything else.

BUCYRUS TAKES STEPS TO BUY CITY PARK SITE

Council Orders Purchase of Lots; Plans Playgrounds, Swimming Pool.

BUCYRUS—City council Tuesday night ordered legislation for the next meeting to buy four lots owned by Attorney E. J. Myers in the Lane-Sandusky street area, which is being planned for a city park.

Myers offered the city the four lots for $400 with the stipulation that five other adjacent lots would be donated by him in exchange for a city-owned lot at Whetstone street and the Galion road, which is not used by the city.

If the city buys the four lots and accepts the five, all of which adjoin Harman playground, the playground space will be considerably enlarged. Present plans call for a driveway from Sandusky avenue to Lane street near the lots and for the construction of a swimming pool in that locality.

Mayor George T. Dustman, however, told council that the city is in need of street repairs and storm sewers before any "appreciable amount is put into a park."

Asks Radio System.

The mayor proposed that council authorize the establishment of a police radio system which would permit headquarters to talk with the police car at all hours.

The system would be similar to that in operation in Mansfield and Shelby, he said. Further details will be announced in the near future, the mayor said. No action was taken on the proposal pending receipt of more complete information.

The mayor also reported that under his administration vice in Bucyrus had been considerably lessened since Jan. 1. He told council that there are now only five houses of ill-fame in Bucyrus compared with 11 on Jan. 1.

Relief costs in February, according to a report submitted by Safety Director W. G. Beebe, totaled $2,276.38 for the care of 704 persons representing 165 families and 47 singles. From the total Beebe deduced $672.20 paid in work relief wages.

Forty-three new relief cases were added during the month. Beebe told council.

INSPECTS POST

He is survivied by his widow who was the former Minnie Flannery of Galion, and six children by a former marriage. Funeral services will be held at Peru Thursday morning where burial will also be made.

GRAND JURY TO HEAR 11 CASES

Last Session of January Term of Court Set For Next Wednesday.

The Richland county grand jury will be called into session probably next Wednesday morning to hear charges against 10 men and one woman in the final session under the January term, County Prosecutor Glenn W. Marriett said today.

Included in the charges to be studied by the jury are four of breaking and entering, two of assault, two of operating a motor vehicle without the owner's consent, and one each of abandonment, grand larceny and cutting with intent to wound.

The cases awaiting jury action are:

Luther Stall, assault with intent to kill; Vaughn Watkins and Arthur Jordan, operating car without owner's consent; Paul Rhodes, Alvin Guthrie, Leroy Bemiller and Anna Bemiller, breaking and entering; John Campbell, colored, cutting with intent to wound; Jesse Snyder, grand larceny; D. W. Rice, attempted criminal assault, and Harold Hoover, abandonment of his wife.

Although the jury will hear assault charges against Stall, he was returned to the Toledo state hospital for mental patients several weeks ago. He was adjudged insane in common pleas court here after he allegedly had attempted to assault the wife of a Mansifeld hotel proprietor.

ADDS 4 ROADS

Ashland Board Makes Addition to County Highway System.

ASHLAND — County commissioners here added four highways to the county system and turned two county roads back to townships for maintenance.

The roads include No. 106 in Hanover township, for 1.093 miles; No. 5 in Milton township for .77 mile; Nos. 8, 85, 185 in Green township for 2.5 miles, and No. 131 in Mohican township for 1.78 miles.

Road 105 in Hanover township for 1.78 miles, and Road 53 in Milton township for 1 mile were turned over to townships.

Commissioners approved the improvement of 2.6 miles in Clear Creek township after 100 petitioners made the request.

Official notification of the abandonment of part of Sections A and C on state route 179 was received by the commissioners from the state highway department.

It was announced that the section of road is no longer in use because of the elimination of the old Rochester bridge in Lake township.

HEAR TALK ON TAXATION

About 35 members of the Mansfield Retail Merchants association heard C. E. Dittmer talked on taxation, and opposed the current movement for repeal of the sales tax.

ASHLAND HIRES ENGINEER FOR SEWAGE SURVEY

Council Appropriates Fund In Move to Revamp System to Get State Approval.

ASHLAND—The sum of $400 was authorized by Ashland city council to be used by Mayor W. Art Mason to hire a consulting sanitary engineer to make a preliminary investigation and report as to what is needed in the local sewage disposal plant in order to comply with state department of health regulations.

The move of the council came as an aftermath of the refusal of the state department of health to approve of tentative plans to build approximately eight miles of sanitary sewers in Ashland. At the time the state refused to grant permission to build any additions to the sewage system, but instead recommended that this city think about an entirely new plant.

The plans which had been submitted were revised ones submitted in 1922, and which also had been rejected with the same recommendation.

If the sanitary engineer does present plans by which this city could see itself clear to adopt a program for building a new sewage disposal plant, it will settle a 17-year-old problem. Main objection to the present system is that it pollutes the town creek which flows the entire length of Ashland.

PRESENT RECITAL

ASHLAND—More than a score of talented young musicians and interpretative reading students appeared Tuesday evening on the program of the public recital presented in the Ashland college chapel.

BOARDS GRANT 'SICK LEAVE'

MILLERSBURG — A resolution was passed at a county meetinig of boards of education whereby teachers may have five days absence a year with pay in case of sickness or death in the immediate family.

The board is to pay a substitute teacher $5 a day and pay the regular teacher for time involved, the time to be accumulative. Supt. J. J. Deetz of the county schools expressed the opinion that most boards would undoubtedly pass a resolution omitting the accumulative phase of the resolution.

FIRES PROTEST ON ROOSEVELT'S PLANNING BOARD

Ohioan Charges Proposal on U. S. Resources Would Permit Widespread Waste.

(By Associated Press)

CINCINNATI—A storm brewed in the Ohio velley today over a little noticed proposal by President Roosevelt to create an executive board to "initiate and propose in an advisory capacity" plans or planning policies for "development of the resources of the nation, both natural and human."

O. Slack Barrett, president of the Ohio Valley Development association, opened the fight by telegraphing all valley senators to oppose inclusion of the proposal, which would establish a national resources planning board in the president's reorganization bill.

The board would take over the work and assets of the national resources committee, an emergency organization now financed by the public works administration.

Barrett contended that the sections in the bill (402-404) setting up the board constituted an effort to achieve "a planned economy, planned nature, and planned human activity," and as such should have thorough consideration separate from the bill.

Predicts More Dissension.

He declared that the sections seemed to make possible projects similar to the Tennessee Valley Authority over the country and predicted that the dissension now rife in the TVA would crop up in any other similar projects that might be started.

A section (501) providing for employing experts and consultants "without regard to laws applicable to the employment and compensation of officers" was described by Barrett as throwing "wide open the doors for extravagances of all kinds."

P. E. Middleton, planning technician in the national resources committee regional office here, replied that any such appointments would be at the request of local authorities seeking help for their projects.

"We do not now, nor will we if the bill is passed," he said, "go in and tell local authorities what to do. We keep track of planning activities everywhere so that if a local group needs help on a project, we can tell it how similar problems were met elsewhere. Only if we are asked for suggestions do we give them."

He emphasized that while the committee structure would be reorganized completely under the bill, it would continue in a strictly advisory capacity.

The bill, now being debated in the senate, would establish a five-member board appointed by the president with the advice and consent of the senate.

WOMAN CITED

Stock Farm Owner Accused by County Humane Officer.

Mrs. Mae Ralston 464 South Main street, owner of two stock farms, will face Judge G. E Kalbfleisch in municipal court Mar. 22 on a charge of failing to treat animals properly.

Ordered to appear in court today, Mrs. Ralston, through her attorney, A. S. Beach, was granted a continuance of five days on the plea that she was not physically able to appear.

Charges were filed in municipal court yesterday by Mrs. Marie Menchan, county humane officer, who claimed that Mrs Ralston had been depriving her stock on two different farms of necessary sustenance through the lack of proper hay and grain.

Mrs. Menchan charged that she had made three trips to the farms on the West Fourth street road and the Shelby-Ontario road and that on two occasions stock had died from the lack of proper nourishment

Meet Today to Discuss Price For Huge TVA Utility Purchase

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Wendell L. Willkie and David E. Lilienthal, who have argued for five years over public utility policies, came to Washington today to discuss terms for the government purchase of vast electric power properties in the Tennessee valley.

Willkie is president of the Commonwealth and Southern corporation which owns the plants in question. Lilienthal is the 38-year-old power director of the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Their meeting followed a supreme court decision which opened the way for federal financing of municipal power projects in the Tennessee valley.

If Willkie and Lilienthal can agree, TVA may buy or lend municipalities the money to purchase some 18 power plants and their transmission systems. Otherwise these properties might be paralleled by $150,000,000 of public developments backed by loans and grants from the public works administration.

Willkie has insisted that if TVA purchases his properties, they be taken over in total and the price should cover their value as "going concerns."

Lilienthal announced in the beginning that TVA would consider only a price representing the "actual legitimate cost of the properties less depreciation."

PARALYZED GIRL WHO GAMBLED WITH DEATH, MOVES ARMS, LEGS

KANSAS CITY—Sylva Davis moved her arms and legs today for the first time since she underwent her momentous operation a week ago, and doctors and nurses were elated.

They said the 20-year-old paralytic, who chose to gamble on a "50-50 chance" against death so she might be normal like other young persons, showed definite improvement.

The girl could move her arms and legs, paralyzed since her birth, before the operation, but could not control them. Today's experiment indicated that now she may be able to do so.

"Try to move your right leg," quietly ordered one of the tense group of physicians and nurses gathered around the girl as she lay in a respirator in St. Luke's hospital.

The brave, brown-eyed girl smiled, then frowned with the effort as she attempted to comply.

Slowly she bent her knee.

Then she moved the entire leg from the hip.

At the doctor's command she lifted her arms slightly.

The group around the respirator that included her mother, exchanged smiles of gratification.

Not wishing to tire the patient, the doctors forebore from requesting further exercise of the girl's members.

HITLER HURRIES BACK TO BERLIN

Poland's Rumored Ultimatum to Lithuania Cuts Short Visit to Vienna.

m. (8:45 A. M., E. S. T.) today.

The army source said originally he had intended to remain several days longer in Vienna, where he concluded his historic four-day Austrian visit yesterday, but that the Polish-Lithuanian crisis called him back to Berlin.

The Polish press has been attacking Lithuania angrily over the border fight between frontier guards in which a Pole was shot and killed. The newspapers declared the man was ambushed deliberately.

There have been reports Poland wants to annex Lithuania, but official circles in Warsaw emphasized that Poland rejected any such idea.

Nevertheless the view was expressed that the Lithuanian clash had greatly disturbed the peace of Europe's Baltic region. Poland, it was said, aims at pacification of this area, and not only wants satisfaction for the border clash but also a drastic revision of Lithuania's attitude toward Poland.

Officials, however, would not say just how they expected these results to be achieved.

HELP STOMACH DIGEST FOOD
Without Laxatives—and You'll Eat Everything from Soup to Nuts

The stomach should digest two pounds of food daily. When you eat heavy, greasy, course or rich foods or when you are nervous, hurried or chew poorly—your stomach pours out too much fluid. Your food doesn't digest and you have gas, heartburn, nausea, pain or sour stomach. You feel sour, sick and upset all over.

Doctors say never take a laxative for stomach pain. It is dangerous and foolish. It takes those little black tablets called Bell-ans for indigestion to make the excess stomach fluids harmless, relieve distress in 5 minutes and put you back on your feet. Relief is so quick it is amazing and one 25c package proves it. Ask for Bell-ans for Indigestion.

NEW OUTBREAK

9 Pupils at Western Avenue Ill With Chickenpox.

An outbreak of chickenpox at Western avenue school today had resulted in the quarantine of nine pupils, Dr. Roy C. Rehder, city-county health commissioner reported.

The first case of the disease was discovered in the school last Friday, W. A. Freeman, principal, said, and spread through the first and second grade classes over the week-end.

As a precaution, all teachers have been instructed to inspect their classes for any suspicious cases, Freeman said.

Dr. Rehder said that the spread of the disease was not considered serious and that health department nurses were making daily visits to the classrooms.

The school has an enrollment of 283 pupils.

CHAPTER XIX

"Yes—for what?" JoseVerdugo asked himself. "That is something I don't know. For what would Red Vasquez want to use Don Murray when so recently he was so bent on killing him? Maybe to get something from Dolores, who I now think is Miss Castle, for not killing Don Murray. I am beginning to wonder whether that raid on Rancho La Luz was what it appeared to be. Well, perhaps I shall learn something at the cafe."

Thus cogitating Jose came to the Cafe Mexico City. He entered and seated himself at an inconspicuous table in a secluded corner, and kissed the widow. Several patrons were at the bar, up front, but in the small cafe proper there was no one save himself.

After ten or fifteen minutes he stretched, yawned, and beckoned to the bartender, who, at the moment, had no one to serve. The white apron came at his summons.

"Have you any Alfonso Trece cigarets, Pepito?" Jose inquired.

"Seguro," said Pepito. Brought them.

"Have one?" Jose broke open the pack and offered it. Pepito took one.

"By the way, Pepito," said Jose said then. "Where are the girls? Dolores and Carmen? I feel like buying them a drink."

"Not here yet," said Pepito. "But—" he looked at his wristwatch, "they're due any minute now."

"Good." said Jose. "Have you seen Senor Vasquez this morning?"

"Sure," Pepito told him. "He was in about an hour ago. Pretty early for him. Had a couple of swift ones and went out. Why?"

"Oh, some fellow asked me to tell him something if I saw him," lied Jose. "I don't think it was very important. Probably I'll see him later."

Two girls ,in street dress, entered the cafe at this moment, and came toward them.

"There are the girls now," Pepito told Jose, unnecessarily.

Dolores and Carmen came up, nodded and smiled and wished them buenas dias. They were continuing their way to the dressing rooms when Jose spoke.

"Just a minute, senoritas," he said, speaking Spanish "I much desire to buy somebody a drink this morning, for I have had some good luck which I wish to share. Will you not join me? I know that you drink nothing strong . . . but you may have what you wish. And perhaps a cigaret also?" He rose, offered chairs. The bartender waited, professionally now.

"That sounds good," said Dolores."

"To me also," said Carmen.

So they seated themselves. Jose noted how different the two girls appeared in their well-modeled street dresses and small chic hats. And very little rouge or lipstick. Certainly they resembled each other quite a lot. And certainly they were two young ladies who could pass anywhere as ladies. Just as a stage humorist, he thought, is an actor while on the stage, and probably a disgruntled father of a large family off the stage, so these girls, as entertainers, had to act the part. But, he thought, he would bet a nickel that they were both straight. Friendly, but straight.

The girls ordered lemonades—real lemonades. And when they had been bought, Joe spoke again

"The reason I stopped you," he said, "was that I had a little story to tell you. May I?"

"Certainly," said the girls.

"It's short," said Joe. "You know Don Murray Kilbourne. Don Murray is trying to discover the daughter of Thomas Castle" Both girls started Looked quickly at each other. Back at Jose.

"Because Mr. Castle is dead," continued Jose.

The two girls stared at their glasses. Then Dolores nodded.

"We—we heard that," she said.

Nothing learned from that attempt, Jose told himself. However . . .

"And you have also heard that Don Murray has been kidnaped by Red Vasquez?"

And now, watching their faces, he saw that of Dolores turn pink, while that of Carmen went pale.

He acted unhesitatingly. Looked at Carmen. Into her eyes.

"And so, Senorita Carmen, otherwise Miss Sue Castle . . . are you going to help me find him—or not?"

* * *

The Senorita Carmen started to her feet, sat down again.

"I'm not—I'm not Sue Castle," she denied. "I'm—Carmen Martinez."

"I think you are Sue Castle," said Jose.

"But I'm not. Oh, I'm not!" cried the girl, arising now. Tears in her eyes. "Dolores—Dolores will tell you I'm not. Come Dolores. Please." She strode away, Dolores following.

Scarcely had Jose left the Cafe Mexico City when Gregoria of the One Ear strode in, cast a look about, then asked the bartender:

"Where are the senoritas? Especially the Senorita Dolores? I have a message for her."

"Carmen has gone out; I don't know where," Pepito told him. But Dolores is in the dressing room, I think."

"Good. Tell her I want to see her," commanded Gregorio.

As the bartender walked back to the dressing room, Gregorio went to the doorway of the cafe and beckoned, whereupon an automobile drove up and parked before the door.

Gregorio returned and seated himself at one of the tables, lighted a cigaret. But very shrortly Pepito returned, followed by Dolores in street costume.

Gregorio rose, and after greeting Dolores, said:

"Senor Vasquez desires to see you immediately. I have a car outside."

"But—what does he want of me?" demanded the girl, frowning. "Why doesn't he come here, if he wants to see me? What's it all about?"

"I don't know, Senorita,' replied Gregorio. "All I know is, Vasquez says, 'Bring Dolores to me; I want to talk to her privately'."

"Oh, so. Just like that, eh? I think I will remain right here. If Vasquez—"

"But I am sorry to disagree with you," put in Gregorio, his smile fading. "When Senor Vasquez tells me to do a thing, that thing is going to be done. And as for you, Senorita—"

He paused and looked at the girl through narrowed eyelids.

"Yes; and as for me—"

"I think that you will see the reasonableness of doing what Senor Vasquez requests. If I am not mistaken there is a little matter between you and him—"

"A shameful frame-up, if that's what you mean," broke in the girl, hotly.

Gregorio shrugged, shot tobacco smoke through his nose.

"That's what you say, of course," he said then. "But I believe Vasquez has the goods on you, just the same. How he got them—I wouldn't know."

"But I know," cried the girl. "It was a deliberate frame-up. He planted that jewelry in my room. Jewelry he had stolen from that American woman. Then brought his confederates."

"Maybe," assented Gregorio. "But what difference does it make? You've done what he told you ever since—which, I suppose, is what he desired to accomplish. So that now you and I shall go and get into the car and do as he desires."

* * *

He rose and waited. For a moment Dolores sat still, defiant. Then her defiance wilted. Gregorio was right. Denial of Vasquez's requests, defiance of Vasquez, meant the cuartel, a trial, suborned witnesses, convicted—and then the terrible Santa Maria Island.

Dolores shuddered and rose.

"You win," she said. "Let's go."

"You are wise, Senorita," approved Gregorio, and they went to the car.

In a few minutes the car, driven this time by Juan, the knife-thrower, drew up before the store of Juan Gomez. Gregorio escorted Dolores up the stairs into the room on the second story. As they entered, Vasquez rose to meet them.

"Good morning, senorita," he said to the girl. And to Gregorio, "All right; you may wait in the car." Gregorio withdrew.

"Sit down, senorita," said Vasquez then, offering the girl a chair and seating himself. Dolores sat.

"What did you want?" she asked, harshly.

Vasquez smiled—or grinned.

"This morning, in about ten minutes, you are going to become the Senora Vasquez. In short, we are going to be married immediately."

"Married!" exclaimed the girl, staring at Vasquez. "Are you loco?"

"Not," replied vasquez, "so you could notice it. Have you any objections?"

NOTE—The following editorial tribute to Clarence Darrow was written by David Gibson, author and newspaper publisher, who writes each week on this page "What One Man Thinks." He was for many years a close and intimate friend of Mr. Darrow.

Clarence Darrow—1857-1938.

THE PASSING of Clarence Darrow last Sunday at the age of four score years and one, closes a long and active life and one socially useful in the highest sense.

His career has been and will continue to be a great beacon light on a cruel and confused sea of humanity, and to a more benevolent attitude—man to man.

His broad humanitarianism, his general philosophy of life, was so far in advance of his time that the work of his mind, as expressed in his many court trial arguments, his book and magazine writing and his public addresses, will stand but one test, and one alone—the judgment of generations yet unborn.

Clarence Darrow did not subscribe to any formal religious doctrine, yet spiritually he was a very religious man. For in the harmonious conduct between man and man, he had arrived at the best, in all religions, and by his own intellectual processes.

He believed in a power, a force, beyond himself—beyond this universe, but he did not undertake to define it.

But personally, he did not meet with the opposition of religious leaders and followers as in the case of the late Robert G. Ingersoll, to whom he was often likened, not only as a lawyer, but as an agnostic. Ingersoll was of another temperament and philosophy of life.

Clarence Darrow had the friendship and enjoyed the companionship of priests, ministers and rabbis—all who really knew him through his broad human sympathies, particularly as a representative of the downtrodden and oppressed.

He can better be likened unto Mark Twain than Ingersoll, not only in his literary ability, but in his philosophy and humor.

Clarence Darrow in his humor can be likened unto Mark Twain in the fact that humor gave both men a sense of proportion—human proportion.

Ingersoll usually appeared in court for a corporation. Clarence Darrow defended those who otherwise would have had no defender—he never took a case against a poor man nor in prosecution of anyone.

While Clarence Darrow was a very great lawyer, even in civil practice, yet he had little personal liking for the law as a science nor for lawyers as lawyers.

He was strongly of the opinion that most laws and court opinions favored property rights rather than human rights; that too much property had been created in law offices and for which the common man must pay, interest and principal.

He was too much of an individualist to take any interest in party politics, although he had appeared now and again upon public platforms for both men and measures in which he believed.

He did not subscribe to any of the common radical beliefs; he saw man's problem as economic rather than political; that with anything like fair economic distribution, we would require less law, fewer courts and far less in the complexities of government.

* * *

Clarence Darrow had a strong imagination!

And this, coupled with his intellect, made him a strong human character.

The reason for his broad human sympathies can be found in his imagination. He visualized, imagined the sufferings of others in himself, and he used his intellect and gave his time in untold effort to the relief of the sufferings of others and to the relief of himself—that which he felt in sympathy.

Clarence Darrow had one of the really great American intellects.

While there were minds greater than his in special pursuits—even greater than his in the law, yet there was no man in his time who could pursue a new subject with a quicker, clearer and more complete understanding.

But intellect, to him, was but a means to an end, which was to pursue the dictates of a kindly heart.

Clarence Darrow was never a happy man, and particularly within the last distressful decade—his kindly emotions were too strong.

In his nearly life-long study of evolution and biology he knew that man had been a long time in arriving at even his present state, and that there would be a still longer period in arriving at anything like an ideal social state and of which he had vaguely dreamed.

Pedestrian Sued.

AN ENGLISH motorist sued a pedestrian for negligence in traffic. It was asserted that the pedestrian's movements had been so erratic as to cause the driver to collide with a bank, damaging his car. The plaintiff was awarded $500 damages.

This is a little out of the ordinary in damage suits resulting from highway accidents. Perhaps there ought to be more actions of the sort. The jaywalker in the United States has received a good deal of criticism for his selfish folly. In some communities he has been bawled out for disregarding traffic signals and crosswalks. But the motorist who has narrowly missed running him down and who has crashed his car into a tree to avoid doing so has not sued for damages. Sometimes, of course, the jaywalker is no longer alive to be sued.

A good idea should not be pushed too far, but certainly it is only fair that pedestrians be made to realize their responsibility in traffic, to obey the regulations and to co-operate with, not defy, the law-abiding motorist.

There's a curious notion nowadays that disapproval of profanity and smut is an unconstitutional attack on free speech and press.

A reader suggests that most of our troubles come from civilization. Then there's hope, for the world today is being rapidly decivilized.

It will take years for Walt Disney to dig himself out of suggestions for his next picture.

Keeping Step

—By LESLIE EICHEL

The Hitler coup disconcerts the British Tory government most of all. Prime Minister Chamberlain and his group of Tory political leaders, industrialists and publishers had tied their fortunes to a rapprochement with Hitler.

At the very moment they were entering into negotiations, the Nazis evidently were perfecting their plans for seizing Austria. When this seizure became an accomplished fact, the British Tory government felt and looked foolish—and no political leaders who feel and look foolish can survive. One may do foolish, or dastardly things, with a bravado and get away with them, but to look a simp is fatal.

The fact of the matter is, the British top class still does not know Adolf Hitler. Books of him, such as "I Know These Dictators" (Hitler and Mussolini), by G. Ward Price, an editor of the London Daily Mail, touch merely the surface. Many of the British top class had begun to believe the Nazi dictator was one of them, had almost begun to deify him as "simplifying" government. The taking of Austria was a terrible shock to them. The man, instead of simplifying things, after all suddenly produced one crisis after another. Very annoying to the nerves—very!

ALWAYS ACTS SECRETLY

Hitler and the small group of Nazis surrounding him always have acted secretly—and hastily.

Price, in his book, brings that out, in tracing the man's career. Yet Price trusted him—as did the British prime minister.

Adolf Hitler cannot be approached as an ordinary human being. Governments who do so, fail to understand either the man or the people he inspires.

Even from Price's book we can gather that Hitler is a politico-religious fanatic. Such people can gain millions of followers, and the followers will not be able to explain why. Even Catholic Austria fell under the spell. The Nazis did not have to "take" Austria. It capitulated with love and kisses. That is another thing which disconcerts the stolid British.

To say that the Austrians are a German people, anyway, is not enough. Hitler casts a spell. Indeed, it is a very intriguing spell to those who have suffered international injustices and want for years. When once Hitler raises his magic voice, no planning really is necessary. He knows that. He leaves the details to others—and the Germans are the best people in the world on details.

Hitler believes he plays a god-given role, and that nothing can stand up in opposition against him, the divinely-inspired.

ALL ARE BOLSHEVISTS

When conservatives in England and the United States back up Hitler's constant cry that he "must save Europe from the Bolshevists," they forget (until something like the Austrian incident occurs) that Hitler terms not merely Russian Communists as "bolshevists," but the people in democratic nations, and Catholics and Jews—in fact, anybody who is not Nazi or Fascisti.

In Germany itself, even the most conservative parties, comparable to the Conservatives in England and the Republicans in the United States, were destroyed, and their leaders and followers imprisoned, completely outlawed.

Persons beheaded as "traitors" for being "Communists" can in all likelihood be ordinary democrats who believe in the free processes of government.

And it must not be forgotten that even within the Nazi party Hitler has had his purges, just as Stalin in Russia has had his. Price estimates, in his book, that Hitler put to death "several hundred" Nazi-ites in that blood purge of his on June 30, 1934. It will be recalled that not only was Captain Roehm, head of the storm troopers, shot immediately, but General von Schleicher, former chancellor, who had opposed Hitler politically, and his wife. There was not a trial. The police simply shot von Schleicher and his wife in their home. And Roehm and his followers did not even know why they were being put to death—when they were stood up against brick walls and shot.

And all that amid the cheers of the populace in the name of this evangelist's political religion. It is not strictly correct to say "amid the cheers"—for the populace does not hear of events until afterwards. No German citizen has a right to discuss the processes of his government.

Price, who scatters adulation all through his book for Hitler, admits that even high government officials may not question the inspiration that comes from on high which even overnight may mean war—and some day possibly will.

That is the horror under which all of Europe lives.

Everyday Poems

—By GEORGE ELLISTON

LEND ME COURAGE

Lend me courage as you would
Some bright comage
That would free me from distress
Of debt's tyrant cage.

Put new faith within my hand
As you would put this,
A caress upon my lips
For remembered kiss.

Put new hope within my heart
In a certain way,
So I can be confident
It will surely stay.

Love alone can do these things,
Lift and soothe and calm;
There is no despair for those
Who know love's dear balm.

IT'S HIS BABY NOW!

The Background of the Uproar Over the TVA

—By MORGAN M. BEATTY

WASHINGTON — If you're looking for an explanation of the violent disputes hanging over the Tennessee valley, you can thumb through the pages of Benjamin Franklin's philosophy and pull out the very thing you are looking for.

Soon after the colonials organized the United States along democratic lines, wise old Franklin suggested that any nation that could afford the luxury of democracy was a lucky one indeed.

He was expressing in a few words the idea that democracy was a system of trial and error; that its citizens argued overmuch, and while arguing, delayed the game and made mistakes. He was saying that delay and mistakes were costly—in short, they were luxuries to be afforded only by a nation rolling in natural wealth.

The United States has enjoyed more than a century of democratic luxury since Franklin made his point. Americans have been free, by and large, to build and argue as they please. They have built well, but also they have argued plenty.

The Democratic Pattern.

Disputes and errors naturally have marked nearly every excursion of government into new fields. Sometimes ideas have been abandoned in the end, like Alexander Hamilton's scheme for a bank of the United States. Again, trial and error have worked out successfully, as they did in the federal reserv. system.

The disputes of the hour in the Tennessee valley are no exceptions.

Nearly five years ago, on the urging of President Roosevelt, congress created the Tennessee Valley Authority as a sort of laboratory for national planning. A decade or more of argument had preceded the decision.

Things Seemed Ideal.

Enthusiasts like Senator George Norris, of Nebraska, argued the valley waters could be harnessed to distribute the blessings of electric power at low cost. The spot was ideal, with power sites along the Tennessee river and its tributaries, big cities to consume power, and farms to benefit from wider distribution. Congress took a chance, and has poured close to $250,000,000 into the idea. Dams have been built for water power, flood control and navigation.

Right off the bat, a group of private citizens with money invested in the Commonwealth and Southern utility system, set up a howl that they were being robbed—a howl that's still echoing through the courts and the newspapers. They've lost every court test so far, but they finally have persuaded the government to offer to buy them out. That'll be a matter of long negotiation.

Next came attack from within. The government's comptroller general said the TVA was wasting government money. Whereupon Senator Austin, of Vermont, told the Senate that the people's money was going up the spout and TVA was frightening business and destroying any possibility of recovery.

To cap the climax, in 1936, the TVA's own board of directors split up, two to one. Chairman Authur E. Morgan, of Ohio, found serious fault with his fellow board members, David Lilienthal, of Wisconsin, and H. A. Morgan, of Tennessee.

But not until this March did the 60-year-old A. E. Morgan really open up. He waited until a federal commission had decided that some "claims" for condemned land were valueless—claims put in, by the way, by a political ally of President Roosevelt, Senator George Berry of Tennessee.

Democracy's Children

BERRY wanted $5,000,000 for marble deposits under land he had leased. The land disappeared under the waters of a TVA reservoir. When the federal commission indicated the claims had no value, A. E. Morgan said Berry had been nursed along by his colleagues on the board. He insisted the claims were an attempt at a bare-faced steal, an example of waste and inefficiency. He appealed to congress and the public through the newspapers.

"There is a tendency toward deterioration of democratic government through political manipulation of public funds," he said in one of his milder moments.

Directors Lilienthal and H. A. Morgan, meanwhile, were letting no grass grow under their feet. Even before A. E. Morgan had spoken they had told President Roosevelt their colleague ought to resign.

Far Into The Future.

THEY said it was democratic to argue things out, but once a vote had been taken, the majority should rule, and A. E. Morgan should shut up.

"But Arthur E. Morgan has transgressed the limits of expressing disagreement," they went on. "His methods (and criticisms) . . . violate the principles of democracy. . . ."

And so—far, far into the future. The world's most ambitious experiment in real estate improvement is beset from all sides. Only a dictator could force the bickering forces to resolve their differences at once. But the United States continues a democracy. After all, democracy nurtured the age of electric power. Democracy will attend to its own children.

Pancreas Has Important Functions.

—By DR. ROYAL COPELAND

For years the pancreas was an organ that baffled science. But during the past quarter of a century, research has solved many of the problems relating to this vital organ.

I venture to say that few persons are familiar with the actual location and the function of this gland. The pancreas is located in the abdomen just below the liver. It extends from one side of the body to the other. On the right side it has a head and that end is directed downward. The lower portion of the gland, or the tail, lies on the left side, close to the spleen.

When we call a structure or organ "vital," we mean we cannot live without it. Such a gland is the pancreas. Its functioning is essential to the maintenance of health, because it is intimately related to the process of digestion.

Like any other structure of the body, the pancreas is subject to irritation, inflammation, ulcers or infections. Stones may form in the ducts or tubes of this structure. Tumors and cancer may also involve the pancreas.

Glandular Structure.

This organ is a glandular structure, which furnishes more than a pint of chemical fluid daily. This fluid, containing certain enzymes, is poured into the small intestine near its beginning. Here it acts upon the bulk of food that passes from the stomach.

Enzymes are chemical substances which help digest food. For example, the "lipase" enzyme in the pancreatic juice digests fat, while the "tripsin" enzyme digests protein. A third enzyme called "amylase" helps digest starch.

These enzymes have been known to medical science for years, but it is only comparatively recently that one of the most valuable products of the pancreas was extracted from it. I refer to that substance known as insulin. This peculiar secretion of the pancreas aids the body in using the starches and sugars.

If, as a result of diabetes, there is a disturbance in the secretion of this element, an accumulation of sugar takes place within the body. Occasionally this accumulation may be of a temporary nature. If it persists and cannot be controlled by diet, it indicates a deficiency of insulin in the body.

It will be seen how important and startling was the discovery of insulin as a remedy and of the ability to manufacture this substance synthetically. By means of the injection of insulin diabetics now live useful and healthful lives.

FAIR ENOUGH

The Presidential Jackpot.

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

LOS ANGELES—Catherine Waugh McCulloch of Chicago belatedly sends your correspondent a Christmas card which is a reprint of the probity law of Guatemala.

The law provides that the president of the republic and other officials of all classes, with a few exceptions in the petty grades, on accepting office must deposit with the director of accounts a statement of all their properties and debts. This statement must include, also, the property and debts of the wife and children who may be under dominion of the father, and other properties which the official may have under his administration.

Pegler

All such officials, their relatives within the fourth degree of consanguinity or the second degree of affinity and their intimate friends are prohibited from becoming contractors or providers of state supplies in dealing with the departments in which the functionaries render their service.

Any officer convicted of violating this law may be imprisoned for a year, and any citizen may bring charges of violation, which must be fully investigated at once.

HOW TIMES HAVE CHANGED

There may have been a time when such a law would have been approved by public opinion in the United States. Nepotism and hidden interests long were a scandal in local and state government and in the lower orders of the federal service, and there was much resentment from time to time until recently.

Far from pursuing this line, however, public opinion here has become much more tolerant and now regards public office, even of the highest, as a legitimate field of commercial profit not only by the relatives and in-laws of the incumbents but by the officials themselves.

The presidency itself is recognized as a jack pot for the occupant and the members of the family, and no higher grade in conduct is required of them in this respect than is required of a mayor, councilman or commissioner of streets and sewers in a rough-and-tumble municipality.

The opposite was true in days when presidents conformed to a rather snooty tradition that the salary of the office was all it paid and that it was undignified, if not unethical, to make a dollar on the side.

MAN'S OWN ETHICS SHOWN BY CONDUCT

But even the Guatemalan law would not cover everything, and the exploitation of an office which sometimes has been described as the highest in the world is governed finally by the ethics of the man who occupies it.

It is one thing to lecture a nation on the ethics of citizenship in a message to congress, but a man's own ethics is shown by his own conduct and that of persons whose conduct is subject to his personal authority.

The Guatemalan law is not clever enough to forbid the son of a president to sell insurance to any bank handling government deposits, to liquor companies beholden to the government for permits and other facilities or to anyone interested in a radio company existing by the pleasure of a political commission of the government.

Apparently, even in Guatemala much is left to the ethics of those concerned, and from the point where the law leaves off it is a question of their civic morality, just as income-tax cases often rest upon questions of civic morality.

The hat-snatch racketeers of the night clubs seem to have hit on the only sure preventative. They pay their employes a straight salary just as we pay our presidents, but they make them wear uniforms without any pockets.

Timely Editorial

Where Do We Go From Here?

A man from Mars might wonder why the 1938 license plates for Ohio automobiles, built to travel 80 to 100 miles an hour, picture a covered wagon drawn by oxen whose high gear speed is three miles an hour.

The explanation is that the covered wagon was the common vehicle of emigrants crossing North America when the Northwest Territory—the region east of the Mississippi river, north of the Ohio river, south of the Great Lakes and west of Pennsylvania — became officially a part of the United States in 1788. The 150th anniversary of that event will be observed this year with apropriate ceremonies, inclusive of a land and water pageant, historically authentic, from New England to Marietta, where the first permanent settlement was made in Ohio.

The automobile is built for speed 30 times as fast as the covered wagon. We have speeded up tremendously. The unanswered question is: Whither bound?—Toledo Blade.

Listen, World!

Life Is Her Dish.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

The tidal wave was twelve feet high.

In it came, a roaring wall, hell bent for everywhere . . . wiping out fishing fleets, steamers, beach cabins, whole islands, in nothing flat. . . .

And there she was, every newspaper instinct in her rarin' to go, with a world scoop on her hands, a pack of jealous news hounds at her heels, a "deadline" to beat—

And a baby due any moment!

But leave it to Irene Kuhn—born Corbally, with the luck of the Irish and the nerve of the devil himself—to find a way out—and turn it all to advantage.

Tidal waves and First Borns charging in together. Life's been like that always for Irene Kuhn—Star Reporter extraordinary from New York, Paris, Hollywood, Hawaii, Shanghai and all way stations. Not forty yet, she's seen enough, done enough, and raised enough hilarious Cain for a dozen men. "ASSIGNED TO ADVENTURE," she called her life story, just released by Lippincott, but there's an even better title, I think, on the inner jacket—"A young woman . . . whose dish is life."

HER DISH IS LIFE. Never were words more apt. I watched Irene once at a job—that goulish orgy of the Hauptmann kidnaping trial. She's a luscious brunette, with that quick, glowing warmth of old Erin that's deeper than any pigment . . . as though you saw the spirit itself moving about its business. And never have I seen it more clearly than in her face that day. There leaped all the horror of the thing before her . . . and she taking it in as it came. Taking Life as her dish—yet, at the same time, keeping control. Not letting it shake her deep balance or get her down.

That's something women can rarely do, no matter what their temperament or job. A man goes through a thing . . . feels and does whatever he thinks is necessary . . . then, unless he's a Susy, lopes on to the next set-up. But women can't take life and leave it like that. They keep chewing it over . . . looking back . . . wondering, regretting.

But not Irene! Having chosen life as her dish, she's taking it without whining. And what a dish—heaped high with the most amazing mixture of beauty, horror, danger, hilarious fun, hardship, poverty, free-for-all brawls and loyal comradery!

Unforgettable pictures in that book. Side-stepping Big Shot seducers with snaggly yellow teeth, husky-plushy offices and houri stenogs. Discovering — with ecstacy and nausea — the withered, raddled, hag-ridden lure of Paris . . . the slow, subtle poison of the Orient.

And always, through it all, the pound-pound-pound of the racing presses matching the thud-thud-thud of her racing blood!

Until that dreadful moment on Michigan avenue when, walking carelessly in the present moment, suddenly skyscrapers, solid earth and swarming streets all vanished . . . and, as a screen unrolling, she saw a place she had never seen before . . . a strip of green, three budding trees, a woman veiled in black . . . a small, square hole . . . a little box.

One glimpse. Then time clicked back. And, wondering, she went her way. Until, weeks hence, she came upon those same three trees again . . . and knew, at last, what waited in that box—

YET, EVEN SO, WENT ON!

Brave Irene Kuhn of the fighting Micks! Life was, and is, her dish. Nor ever has she flinched from its heaping, even though the flavor often lay like aloes on her lips. And now we have her story, "ASSIGNED TO ADVENTURE," a book that every man will like and every woman needs. A book I'd like to put in the hands of every young girl in America and say—

"There, youngster—go and live like that. Dare to make life your dish . . . heaped with whatever comes. Dare to gulp it all down . . . then wipe your eyes and steady your knees . . . AND HOLD OUT YOUR HANDS FOR MORE."

CONTRACTS LET FOR $3,500 IN CITY SUPPLIES

Mansfield Firm to Furnish Asphalt, Buys Brick From Wooster Company.

The city board of control today announced that it had awarded three contracts totaling approximately $3,500 for additional supplies to be used by the city this year.

For the second successive year, the Mansfield Asphalt Paving company, the lone bidder, was awarded the contract for furnishing the city with asphalt at a base bid of $1,380.

The contract calls for the delivery to the city of 200 tons of paving materials of various grades. The firm quoted a price of $6.90 per ton for Westphalt, $5.90 per ton for T-50 type A binder, $6 20 for type B binder, $6.40 for type C and $7.50 per ton for sheet asphalt

Buys 40,000 Brick.

The second largest contract was awarded to the Medal Brick and Tile company of Wooster for paving brick for improving city streets on the firm's low bid of $1,213.

The Wooster concern, one of the two firms whose bids were considered, was approximately $200 lower than its competitor, the Metropolitan Paving Brick company of Canton whose base bid amounted to $1,413. The brick contract calls for delivery of 40,000 shale brick of various sizes ranging from 2½-inch to 4-inch

A proposal submitted by the Alliance Brick and Tile company of Alliance was rejected by the board because it was accompanied by a check drawn on an out of town bank.

Kallmerten and Baer was awarded the contract for furnishing pre-mixed concrete over four other firms. All submitted identical bids. Their base bid was $975 for 100 cubic yards of premixed concrete to be delivered the city.

Other bidders were the Builders Supply, Voegele Brothers, Lomax Coal company and M. L Branyan Brothers company.

'Y' PREPARES FOR 2 EVENTS

Plans Annual 'Find Yourself Campaign,' Revives Father and Son Banquet.

Plans for two events sponsored by the Boy's Work committee of the Y. M. C. A. had been completed today.

The committee will conduct its annual "Find Yourself" campaign for Senior high school students, and will revive, after a lapse of several years, the "Y" father and son banquet which was an annual event for a number of years, but was dropped several years ago.

The event this year will be in the form of a pot-luck dinner.

The dinner will be held in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium and will be open to all boys and young men who are members of the "Y" and their fathers.

Date of the annual "Find Yourself" campaign was set for the first week of May, and will be held at the Senior high school. During this week the committee will have business and professional men and women of Mansfield to confer with the students and answer questions in helping them to select their life work.

RURAL SCHOOLS JOIN FIGHT TO KEEP SALES TAX

Boards, Teachers and P. T. A. Groups Enlisted In Drive Against Repeal of Levy.

Richland county's rural school boards, teachers and Parent-Teacher organizations had been enlisted today in the battle against repeal of the sales tax in Ohio.

In a letter to Boyd Robinson, county superintendent, the Ohio Education association called on rural schools to provide information in their communities concerning the importance of sales tax revenue to the operation of schools.

The Mansfield City Teachers association joined in the drive to keep the sales tax more than two weeks ago and has been distributing literature to parents, urging them to oppose the anti-sales tax campaign.

Seeks Vote On Tax.

Inaugurated in Akron early in January by Dr. Oscar Hayes, the Anti-Sales Tax League of Ohio has sent petitions into all parts of the state calling for a vote on the sales tax issue at the November election.

Robinson estimated that repeal of the sales tax in Ohio would cost the Mansfield, Shelby and county schools more than $450,000 a year, causing most of them to close.

The county's rural schools receive $222,000 annually from the state tax for operating expenses, he said.

In their letter to Robinson, officials of the Ohio Education association pointed out that schools get 45.7 per cent of the sales tax receipts, while 30.5 per cent goes to local governments for operation costs, 20 per cent for relief and 3.8 per cent for administration costs.

Removal of the sales tax and other levies opposed by the anti-tax organization would take from $70,000,000 to $90,000,000 from the state annually which would have to be made up from new levies, the education association said.

Still Coughing?

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your cough, chest cold, or bronchial irritation, you can get relief now with Creomulsion. Serious trouble may be brewing and you cannot afford to take a chance with any remedy less potent than Creomulsion, which goes right to the seat of the trouble and aids nature to soothe and heal the inflamed mucous membranes and to loosen and expel the germ-laden phlegm.

Even if other remedies have failed, don't be discouraged, try Creomulsion. Your druggist is authorized to refund your money if you are not thoroughly satisfied with the benefits obtained from the very first bottle. Creomulsion is one word—not two, and it has no hyphen in it. Ask for it plainly, see that the name on the bottle is Creomulsion, and you'll get the genuine product and the relief you want. (Adv.)

Teofilo was arrested by police at West Fourth and Sycamore streets.

CONTAGION UP 400 PER CENT

Rehder's Report Shows 233 Cases In City Last Month, Only 62 In January.

Contagious diseases in Mansfield during February showed an increase of nearly 400 per cent over the previous month, the monthly report of Dr. Roy C. Rehder, health commissioner, showed today.

During February when the smallpox outbreak was at its height, a total of 233 cases of various communicable diseases was reported as compared with only 62 cases in January.

The largest increase was shown in measles where 187 cases were reported last month, more than six times the number in January, when 30 cases were reported.

The report also revealed that 34 cases of smallpox in the city last month, while there were none in January. Approximately 70 other cases of smallpox were reported in the county outside of Mansfield where the outbreak started and where the disease was more prevalent. A slight decrease was shown in scarlet fever with nine cases recorded in February as compared with 15 during January. There also was three cases of mumps and two of pneumonia.

Dr. Rehder explained that the smallpox cases reported were only a part of the number that had been recorded by the health department and that the report for March would show additional cases.

The Fellowship of Prayer

Daily Lenten Devotion

By DR. WILLARD L. SPERRY

Wednesday, March 16. "I have not found so great faith, no, not in Israel." Read Matthew 8:5-13.

Militarism is very much out of fashion today. But I have always been grateful for one close soldier friend, an English Colonel of the Ghurka Rifles. I learned from him a great many things I should otherwise never have known, and am constitutionally apt to miss.

It is worth our while remembering that the Prince of Peace had this soldier friend whom he respected, and of whom he spoke with spontaneous approval. Whatever else the man understood, he understood the meaning of the word "obedience."

Our disobedience of the commands of Christ is not usually a matter of wilfully doing the exact opposite of what he commands; it is far more often a matter of doing nothing at all. An officer expects an order to make an instant difference in the conduct of the soldiers to whom he speaks. The centurion expected Jesus to give such an order, and he was prepared to obey. "We have done those things which we ought not to have done,"—yes, we can all think of them. "And we have left undone those things which we ought to have done"—ah, it is there that the General Confession touches our conscience still more surely.

Prayer: O God, who from ancient days hast graven old commandments upon the tablets of time, grant that by making our submission to the common conscience of mankind we may be fitted for thy new commandments to this day. Amen.
